1000 TONS OF SUGAR BROUGHT HERE BY BARGE

Shipments Received Yesterday Part of Maximum Cargo Being Carried Regularly.

Cargoes being carried by the Government river service on the Mississippi River, which have been greatly increased during the period of the switchmen's strike and car shortage, continue at the maximum of the ability of the line to carry.

In a cargo arriving in St. Louis yesterday was 1000 tons of sugar, which is a chief dependence of the line in its northern movement, as wheat is in the southern movement. During a 60-day period following the Louisiana harvest last autumn, the barge line carried 17,000 tons of sugar.

There are 100 barges waiting for transfer to the 100 freight cars of merchandise in St. Louis and 40 in East St. Louis, with two barges leading grain at elevators. It is expected that eight barges of freight will move south by river in two tows, one the latter part of this week and one the first of next.

PHYSICIAN CHARGED WITH OPERATING CONFIDENCE GAME

Man Says Doctor Agreed to Cure Girl for $1000, But Did Not Heal Her.

Dr. Samuel J. Randall, 62 years old, a physician with offices in the Metropolitan Building, East St. Louis, was arrested today on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Wagon of Belleville, charging him with having operated a confidence game.

The warrant was issued on complaint of John Lincoln of West Frankfort, Ill., who said he paid $1000 to Dr. Randall in East St. Louis May 10 last on Randall's promise that he would cure Lincoln's 12-year-old daughter, who was suffering from partial paralysis. The warrant alleges the promise was not kept. J. L. Lampkin, city attorney of West Frankfort, accompanied Lincoln to Belleville to apply for the warrant.

Dr. Randall, after his arrest, said there had been some mistake. He asserted that he never took a case with a promise to cure the patient and said he could not remember Lincoln or any transaction of the kind mentioned in the warrant.

CABANNE AVENUE FOLK TO PAY FOR REPAIRING STREET

Residents Tell Board of Public Service They Know City Is "Hard Up"—Offer to Be Accepted.

WATERMAN AVENUE FULL OF "SHELL HOLES"

Breaking of Auto Axle Reported by One Man; Great Vibration in House When Fire Apparatus Passed.

Property owners on Cabanne avenue, between King's highway and Clarendon avenue, today notified the Board of Public Service that they were ready to bear the cost of emergency repairs to the street pavement. If the city Street Department would supervise the work. They plan to hire the laborers and pay for the repair materials.

City officials said the plan would be accepted, and that it was the first time in their recollection that property owners had made such an offer, and had not sought to place the whole burden on the city.

"We know the city is hard up for money," said Cortlandt Harris of 5140 Cabanne avenue, who presented the plan. "We do not share the idea which seems to be generally prevalent, that we can come down to the city Hall and stick our hands in a barrel of money for the cost of our local improvements."

Harris said the property owners felt that this was not the time to reconstruct the street because of high cost of labor and material. A bill for such reconstruction was before the board. Harris said 61 residents, representing 80 per cent of the property on that section of Cabanne avenue, favored the plan proposed by him.

A measure for the reconstruction of Waterman avenue, from De Ballevue avenue to Skinker road, was discussed by a number of the residents, all of whom complained of the "shell holes" along the street, which were divided as to the plan to make the permanent improvement at present.

Motor Buses Assailed.

The chief objection offered was that motor buses and through trucks would use the street, if it were improved, and would soon make it as bad as ever. For this reason, the objectors said, it was useless to improve Waterman avenue until parallel streets are also improved.

William H. Barnes of 5770 Waterman, objecting, said the buses had ruined the street. A. A. Dunn, 5842, favoring the improvement, said the street was "bad before the buses ever used it. John P. Leary, who lives on the 5700 block, spoke of the possibility of interring a cat in the holes. A representative of Grace Methodist Church opposed the improvement on the ground that it would make Waterman a main thoroughfare.

Other improvement bills, on which there was less discussion, were for DeGerville avenue and Hamilton avenue, between Delmar boulevard and Waterman avenue, and Forest Park boulevard, from Grand avenue to Boyle avenue.

OMAHA STORES ENGAGE IN PRICE-CUTTING WAR

Marking Down From 20 to 50 Per Cent Spreads From Department Stores to Specialty Shops.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., May 18.—Price-cutting among Omaha merchants, which started yesterday morning, when one of the big department stores announced a cut of 20 per cent on virtually everything in the house was resumed again this morning with nearly every big store in the city taking part and many of the smaller ones making heavy reductions.

While the war started among the department stores it has now spread to the exclusive shops as well. Today hardware stores, shoe stores, hat stores and exclusive men's stores entered the battle. While the reduction, when started, was a cut of 20 per cent, that figure has long since been passed and now many where from 30 to 50 per cent is the rule.

In all the stores participating in the fight no new price tags have been attached to the goods. Simply the old tags are used and the clerk and customer figure out the percentage being given by the house and that sum is accepted.

Everything in Store Cut.

In the Brandeis store, the largest department store in Omaha, not a single reservation is being made. Nationally advertised goods upon which manufacturers place the selling prices have been cut just as other goods. Shoes which last week were selling at $16 a pair can today be purchased for from $10 to $13. Clothing of nationally known makers, which last week was on sale at $80 a suit is selling anywhere from $38.50 to $42.50. Women's suits have been reduced accordingly.

Chocolate sundae at 12 cents, including war tax; peanuts at 4 cents a bag, the usual $1 golf balls at 70 cents, diamonds at $420 a carat and candy at $1 a pound were among the items offered at one store today. Storage reported record-breaking business. People stood in line at some places two hours before the doors opened.

Hardware, paints, brushes, phonographs, pianos, hats, washing machines, simply everything has been cut and every hour new stores enter the fight for business and the newspapers are carrying page "ads" for firms announcing the reduction.

Yesterday the public did not become aware until afternoon that a real price war was in progress. During the morning the buying was lux but in the afternoon when the news spread the public responded and for hours every store was crowded. The exception being two of the large stores which have not made any marked reduction.

NEW EFFORT TO REVIVE HORSE RACING HERE

Business and Professional Men Sponsoring Move for Racing Without Bookmaking.

Plans to revive horse racing in or near St. Louis are again under way, this time under the sponsorship of a group of St. Louis business and professional men to whom the project was explained at a meeting at the St. Louis Club last Friday by Nat W. Ewing, insurance agent and president of the Newmarket Bank.

The tentative plan as outlined is to build a new race track to operate without recognized betting within the inclosure. Wagers, if made, would be made under the oral system now used on the New York tracks.

Ewing today said the plans were only in the formative stage, but that the purpose was to put racing on the "highest possible plane" if it should be revived here.

CONGESTION OF FREIGHT HERE AGAIN SERIOUS

Traffic Bulletin of C. of C. Shows Railroads Are Restricting Shipments to East—Express Affected.

LITTLE BUSINESS TO CHICAGO AND DETROIT

New Information Bureau to Aid Shippers in Tracing Goods Opened in Union Station.

Serious obstructions to freight traffic from the insurgent switchmen's strike, which began April 8, are shown in the latest embargo notice issued by the Chamber of Commerce Traffic Bureau. The report is the most comprehensive which has been issued for two weeks or more, and it reads much like those issued in the early period of the strike.

The bulletin says that express service has been badly congested for the last few days, and that the regular pick-up service has been interrupted, but that it is hoped to resume it.

The St. Louis freight depot of the Pennsylvania is still closed, and the East St. Louis depot is accepting less-than-carload shipments for points up to New Brunswick, N. J., but not to Cincinnati, Cleveland or Buffalo. The Wabash is again refusing freight for Detroit, or for other lines via Detroit.

The Illinois Central is "handling very little business for Chicago" and no business for connecting lines via Chicago. It also refuses to take any shipments east of the Indiana-Illinois State line.

Lines accepting less-than-carload freight for points on their own lines and for connecting lines, subject to embargoes, are the Big Four, Southern, C. & E. I. and Wisconsin. Lines accepting carload freight are the C. & A., Rock Island, Cotton Belt, Clover Leaf, C. & P. & St. L., Burlington, M. & K. T. and M. & O.

"Large line-haul restrictions" is the statement with which the embargo report closes.

The Missouri Pacific is not mentioned in the bulletin. It was stated by officials of that road that it is accepting freight for all points on its own lines and for all connections which have no embargoes.

Railroad officials are complaining of difficulty in obtaining the return of empty cars. Ruling material shipments are being delayed to a point which is interfering with construction work.

New Tracing Bureau.

A new freight information bureau, for the tracing and expediting of freight shipments, has been opened in room 306, Union Station, under the auspices of all the railroads entering St. Louis. The bureau can be reached by telephone through the Terminal Association exchange. Shippers are invited to make use of the bureau in locating freight held here or at other points, and for the movement and placing of carload freight on either side of the river.

ADAM DID NOT WEAR A BEARD, ARTIST DECLARES

Examinations of Ancient Canvas Shows Hirsute Adornment Had Been Painted on.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, May 18.—Adam did not wear a beard, according to the dictum of M. Teby, Director of the Hungarian National Art Museum, who has eliminated the great ancestor's hirsute adornment in restoring Jordeus' famous picture "Adam and Eve." The picture shows Adam looking at the apple and Eve listening to the serpent in the splendors of Eden. Examination of the canvas has shown the beard was not a part of the original picture, but was painted on during the last century when beards were popular.

This canvas was one that escaped the fury of the Communists. It was the property of Count Karasonyi, who gave it to a leader of the red guard for having aided in saving a valuable collection. Later the picture was sold to the museum for 3,000,000 crowns.

The Interstate Commission took its first step yesterday toward breaking the freight blockade, when the telegraphic appeals were sent to all state railway and public service commissions, urging them to join hands with the Government in lifting the burden, while the commission at work securing data on conditions at important gateways and terminals and most of this was expected to be in the hands of the commission tonight.

The commissioners pointed out that it will require several days and possibly weeks before anything like normal transportation conditions can be resumed.

DRUGGIST WANTS PERMISSION TO EXCEED WHISKY ALLOWANCE

Prescription Sales So Risk 400 Gallons a Year Will Not Supply All Demands.

Sales of whisky on prescription by one big downtown St. Louis drug store have been so brisk that it has filed an application for a special permit to sell more than the amount specified in the prohibition regulations.

Under the regulations a retail druggist is permitted to sell 100 gallons a quarter, or 400 gallons a year. A permit will be issued to sell more than this if the dealer can show a legitimate prescription demand for more.

Some grades of whisky, when purchased in five-barrel lots at Government warehouses, are being sold as low as $1 a gallon, the purchaser being required to pay $2.20 a gallon tax before taking it out of the warehouse. A whisky dealer today said most St. Louis druggists were buying case goods on which the tax had been paid. For this they pay $10 to $12 a gallon. Whisky sells on prescription at $2 to $3 a pint, or $16 to $24 a gallon.

With increasing complaints from shippers and requests for assistance from the railroads themselves, the commission is understood to be determined to go into the freight tie-up with hammer and tongs. Officials, however, urged patience on the part of those watching for immediate results, since it may require days and even weeks to start anything like a resumption of normal transportation service.

In its first attempts at freeing the maze of rail plans, the commission probably will deal with local situations in the various cities (through individual roads. This was expected to last, however, only until a general scheme can be worked out by which priorities and embargoes can be employed to restrain the on-rushing stream of commodities waiting at every station.

Fuel Situation Threatening.

Further suggestions of the railroads were given the commission at conferences with representatives of the railroads and shippers' organization officials. The fuel situation has slowly developed to the danger point, reports were received today, proposed that the commission establish a general, although counter movement of coal cars eastward.

The commission, in a statement, said it was keeping in constant touch with every phase of the situation through its own representatives, and in co-operation with the railroads. The American Railway Association's car service has turned over to the commission its figures on the car supply in order to develop the actual condition in all localities.

"In the last few days," the statement continued, "complaints and requests for assistance have been received from shipping interests throughout the country. These have been handled immediately with the carriers and in many instances the inspectors of the commission have

REPARATIONS PLAN TO GO TO WASHINGTON

Success of Scheme Depends on Acceptance of Bonds by U. S., French Contend.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, May 18.—Co-operation by the United States is very largely counted upon by allied circles, and particularly by the French, for success of the scheme of liquidation of war debts and reparations laid down by Premier Lloyd-George and Millerand at the recent conference in Hythe.

The viewpoint of French official circles is that the German bond issue on which the whole plan rests must largely be accepted by the United States in payment of French debts on the system will fail. Great Britain's acceptance of these bonds in payment of the debt of France also depends upon their acceptance by the United States.

The principles of the plan as sketched by the French and British premiers will be referred to Washington as well as to the allies for approval and it is probable that each Government will be asked to offer suggestions to the plan acceptable all around.

It was said today in official circles that there was plenty of room left for suggestions, since the Hythe conference left all the details to be worked out by experts. Even the total amount of reparations will be open to modification, 120,000,000,000 marks being the maximum.

COL. W. D. MANN, EDITOR OF TOWN TOPICS, DIES

Civil War Veteran, Last of Custer's Cavalry, Figured in Many Libel Suits.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Col. William d'Alton Mann, owner and editor of Town Topics and the last surviving member of Custer's famous cavalry brigade in the Civil War, died yesterday at his home in Morristown, N. J. A complication of diseases was the direct cause of his death, but he had been ill for eight months since he was stricken last October with influenza. He was in his eighty-first year. His widow, Mrs. Sophie Hartog Mann, and a daughter by a former marriage, Mrs. E. Mann Vinne, survive.

Col. Mann retired from the army in the class of the Civil War, when a Colonel in Custer's Brigade. Before the war he was a civil engineer. He was born in Sandusky, O., Sept. 27, 1839. At the outbreak of the Civil War he organized the First Cavalry Regiment in Michigan, but it never saw service. He then organized the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Cavalry Regiments, which were taken in with Custer's Brigade. After his retirement from the army, the Colonel went to Mobile, Ala., where he entered journalism. This was in 1866. He soon became the owner and editor of the Mobile Times. In 1867 he bought two other papers and finally controlled the newspapers of that city.

Col. Mann purchased Town Topics from his brother, Eugene B. Mann, many years ago. Immediately after taking hold of this publication, he began to print what he called "Truth" about wealthy and prominent persons. Probably no publication in the world has had more libel suits brought against it than Col. Mann's weekly. Time and time again he was brought to court charged with blackmail and slander, but he kept on.

One of the many actions brought against Col. Mann was a suit for $200,000 for alleged alienation of the affections of his daughter from her husband, Senator Albert A. Wray. Col. Mann won this suit.

In 1906 Norman Hapgood, then editor of Collier's Weekly, printed an "expose" of Town Topics' methods and particularly of a certain alleged publication called "Pads and Pancies." This was a book in which wealthy or socially prominent persons were written up in a complimentary way—for a price. Sometimes, it was said, this price ran as high as $10,000.

Col. Mann, through his partner, Judge Joseph M. Deuel, brought suit against Hapgood for criminal libel, and all the facts about "Pads and Pancies" came to light during the trial of this case. Hapgood was acquitted. Later Col. Mann was tried on a charge of having committed perjury in the Hapgood case, but was found guiltyless.

During the Hapgood trial, Col. Mann admitted having borrowed large sums from time to time from J. Pierpont Morgan, James R. Keene, William K. Vanderbilt, Thomas Fortune Ryan and others. These loans amounted to about $200,000 and Col. Mann said he was not in a position to repay them.

Col. Mann was a member of the military order of the Loyal Legion and his clubs were the Manhattan, Army, National Democratic and New York Press.

EXPECTS AMERICANS TO JOIN INTERNATIONAL LABOR BODY

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 18.—American workmen eventually will be affiliated with the international organization of labor in the opinion of Albert Thomas, French labor leader and director-general of the International organization, who spoke here yesterday before the International Institute of Agriculture. Present in his audience were King Victor Emmanuel, members of the Cabinet and diplomats, including Robert Underwood Johnson, American Ambassador to Italy.

The American Federation of Labor hesitated to join the international organization," said Thomas, "but now America has been asked to participate in the international conference of seamen, which will begin soon at Genoa, under the auspices of the international body. Although America will participate only as an observer, the presence of her representatives there will be the first step, which sooner or later, will lead the Americans into joining the organization."

KIRKWOOD ASKS FOR ELECTION

Two hundred and thirty-nine voters of Kirkwood last night presented a petition to the Board of Aldermen which calls on Mayor Matthews to issue a call within 10 days for an election to be held within 60 days on the question of adopting the commission form of government. The call must be made as the petition was signed by more than one-fourth of the voters at the last election.

The movement for a change in the Kirkwood system follows a bitterly contested election held April 6, when Mayor Matthews was elected over Albert Kinyon by five votes.

REPUBLICANS HAVE TASK IN PLEASING BOTH FACTIONS

Strategy Directed Toward Satisfying One With Presidential Nomination and Other With League Plank.

CHOOSING CANDIDATE MOST DELICATE ISSUE

Johnson and Wood About Equal Because Politicians Want Neither—Lowden's Strength Growing.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—National Republican strategy is being directed to two main ends: Nomination of a presidential candidate satisfactory to the conservative interests, and adoption of a League of Nations plank to which all elements of the party, the Johnson extremists as well as the mild middle-grounds, can subscribe.

As to the candidate, one man's guess is still as good as another's. Wood and Johnson, apparently, will go into the convention with about equal strength. The standpat element which rules the inner councils of the party wants neither of them; for neither could surely be counted upon to play the political game in the old way. The politicians want a return to the Hanna-McKinley days, not the days of Roosevelt.

It is further held against Wood that he is "tainted with militarism." This may or may not be true. The material fact is that the politicians believe that the public believes that it is true. Because of their conviction that the public, especially that of the Middle West, is opposed even to the faintest shadow of militarism, the leaders in the Senate dodged a vote on the universal military training law. Gen. Wood is making his campaign as Leonard Wood, and his managers have sought in every way to remove the impression that he is "militaristic" in any objectionable sense, but they have not wholly succeeded. At least, the party bosses think they have not, which comes to the same thing.

Johnson Opposed as Radical.
The objections to Senator Johnson are obvious. It is enough that he is a radical, that he has attracted all sorts of radical groups to his support. The would-be President-makers in this year of 1920 most emphatically don't want a radical; though it is said that Senator Penrose, as between Johnson and Wood, would prefer Johnson, because he believes the Californian would be more likely to "play ball" with the politicians than would the General. Penrose, it must always be understood, is primarily the boss of Pennsylvania, not a broad-visioned national leader. His main concern is to perpetuate his power in the Keystone State; he's for the candidate who promises best in that respect.

But the preference which current political report attributes to Penrose is for Johnson only as above Wood. "Big Botes" wants neither. As a feeler, he announced his liking for his colleague, Knox; he trotted him out, as the politicians say, to have him looked over. The response in the Republican press appears not to have been over-enthusiastic. Knox wears too patently the brand of reactionary.

Lowden Has Good Chance.

There remains Harding, Hoover, Lowden. Harding's star is in eclipse; permanently, according to best-informed Republican opinion. His candidacy didn't "take" with the people. Hoover was a Republican possibility only so long as he remained also a Democratic possibility. So far as the leaders are concerned, he has been counted out. Lowden's strength in the inner circles is undoubtedly growing. Assuming that Wood and Johnson will kill each other off—an assumption quite prevalent among the political wisecracks—Lowden today stands as good a chance as any of the candidates now in the field. He has not stirred up the antagonisms that both Wood and Johnson will bring to the convention; he is conservative, but not too much so; he is, in short, the sort of colorless candidate that the mandarins of the party prefer.

A good many competent observers believe that the nominee will be either Lowden or a dark horse. Governor Allen of Kansas is named as a possibility, though his stock has fallen of late. Charles E. Hughes is another.

Nothing, however, is settled with finality, except the major fact already mentioned that the great General Staff of the party is moving heaven and earth to get the "right" candidate and yet prevent a "right" candidate from being elected. A significant process of trading developments that have come to the surface indicate that Johnson is trading his radical principles for recognition of his bitter-end treaty fight, and that the treaty reservationists are trading their mild League of Nations views for Johnson's support. The end in view, of course, is to harmonize elements of the party under the banner of a conservative candidate who is yet not so obviously conservative as to invite the veto of Johnson.

Talk of a bolt crops up periodically, but most observers discount it. Borah, they say, speaks for himself, not for Johnson. With victory, as they believe, in their grasp, it is hardly conceivable that the Republicans will countenance any course that would threaten a repetition of the catastrophe of 1912. That lesson is too fresh in mind. Will Hays is eternally on the job for "harmony." Return of the party to power—that's the main desideratum. The party is out to win—with a conservative of possible, but win.

But how can any league of nations plank be drawn to satisfy all the conflicting Republican elements? To the lay mind it would seem an impossible task. Here are three divergent groups, each as far apart from the others as one political party nominally is from the other: the Johnson bitter-enders, the Lodge reservationists and the mild reservationists.

Two Planks for Republicans.
To the word-jugglers who make the party platforms anything is possible. Two planks of the Republican declaration at Chicago have virtually been agreed upon. One is a ringing condemnation of the Wilson administration, lock, stock and barrel. That came easy. The other represents the highest art of the platform maker. It solved the problem raised by Republican dissension on the treaty. It ringingly indorses all the 49 Republican Senators for their "Americanism" in dealing with the treaty. That is the umbrella (mixing the metaphor is perhaps pardonable in this connection) under which all can get in out of the rain—the Johnson faction, the Lodge faction and the mild McNary-McCumber group. Senator Newberry is not mentioned by name but, as he is one of the 49, he shares in the indorsement.

Johnson gets an O.K. on his anti-treaty fight; so also do the reservationists on their fight for a modified treaty. The "Americanism" plank will let the presidential candidate, whoever he may be, take whatever stand on the treaty the party may think warranted by future developments. Politically speaking, it is a perfect plank.

WOMAN DIES AFTER SHOOTING SELF OVER DOMESTIC QUARREL

Mrs. Marie Opp, 27 years old, of 1237A South Sixth street, died at the city hospital at 6:30 p. m. yesterday from a bullet wound in the abdomen, self-inflicted, following a quarrel with her husband, Ewing, an acid mixer, when he insisted on wearing a new suit to his work yesterday.

Before she died Mrs. Opp told a policeman she had asked her husband to get the suit from the tailor shop on Sunday, but he had put it off because of the rain. Yesterday, she said, when he prepared to go to work at noon he went to the shop and put on the suit. When he returned home she begged him not to wear it to work, she said, but he insisted, so she took her own revolver and went to the kitchen, where she shot herself. A child also survives.

Turnkey at Magnolia Station to Celebrate Half Century of Service on June 1.

Philip Hoehn, 73 years old, of 2642 Oregon avenue, turnkey at the Magnolia Avenue Police Station, on June 1 will celebrate his fiftieth anniversary as a member of the Police Department.

There are only two other men who have been on the force longer than Hoehn. They are Hugh O'Neill, former Chief of Detectives, who is now a watchman at the City Hall, and Thomas Purcell, who is a signal officer in the Mounted Police District.

Hoehn became a patrolman in 1870 and his first assignment was a beat in Carondelet. In those days, he said, patrolman received $75 a month and worked 12 hours a day. There were no patrol wagons then, and if a prisoner was unable to walk the arresting policeman had to commandeer a hand-cart or wheelbarrow. After walking a beat for many years Hoehn was made superintendent of repairs and construction. He became a turnkey six years ago. He has three sons, two daughters and seven grandchildren.

Prisoners Farming 1500 Acres.

The cost of existence in the Missouri penitentiary has advanced from 21 cents a day per inmate for food in 1917 to 35 cents, according to William R. Painter, chairman of the Prison Board, who is at the Painters Hotel. Painter added that it was hoped to reduce the cost by producing a large quantity of vegetables this summer. He said that prisoners were farming 1500 acres of land.

PRIEST SAYS PROPAGANDA OF BRITISH ATTACKS AMERICANISM

Advices Catholic Union of Missouri to "Read Between Lines" of Newspapers.

British propaganda is undermining the very foundation of Americanism, the Rev. Father Joseph Wentker of St. Louis said yesterday during an address to the Catholic Union of Missouri, in session at St. Charles. About 800 are in attendance at the meeting, which will close this afternoon. Election of officers and a selection of the meeting place for next year will be the business of the afternoon.

The Rev. Father Wentker asserted that British propaganda had been begun in the United States on a large scale long before the recent war, that it had been conducted indefatigably during the war, had increased after the war and is stronger now than ever. He advised his hearers to read between the lines when perusing metropolitan newspapers.

Materialism and Socialism are two besetting dangers in America today, he said.

FARRIS IN SPEECH TELLS OF INDICTMENTS

Refers in Joplin Address to His Record After Being Advised to Do So.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 18.—Frank H. Farris of Rolla, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, who has been indicted and acquitted twice on legislative graft charges, last night called attention to the fact in an address here formally opening his campaign. He also told of a third indictment, in Dent County, under the corrupt practices act, which has not been generally known.

Telling of his indictments in anticipation that the facts would be used against him in the campaign and to forestall his critics, Farris did not go into details or offer an extended defense. "I am the worst man in the world," he said, "except where I live. There are men with long tongues, loose at both ends, who are ready to say something slanderous about me, except where I live."

Not Disappointed. "I knew when I started into this campaign that I would have to contend with this. I have not been disappointed."

"In some places they think I have horns, that I am a wild man. I once carried a county in an election because the people there were given to understand that I was so terribly vile, that when I went there and they saw that I was only human, they were for me."

"I know what's coming. I know more than that. I know the people of Missouri better than some men think. I know they are fair and square. When given to understand that a man is misrepresented and maligned and accused for no other purpose than political they will resent it."

"I have heard mutterings and so on; you will see in public prints that Frank Farris was indicted. Yes, he was! That's all they say. They won't say that he was tried and acquitted."

"Didn't Go to Mexico." "I confess I was indicted, but I didn't go to Mexico. I stayed in Missouri. I was tried in the county in which I was indicted and it was not the county in which I lived. I was acquitted by a jury."

"I know another man. He wasn't tried. He was taken before a judge who said: 'I find no fault with you,' and the mob took this man out and hung him. Those who throw stones at me would hang me now after I have been discharged by the law."

"Yes, I know a good many who were indicted. There may have been a lot of others who ought to have been."

"They indicted me once in Dent County under the corrupt practices act in an election and I had not been in the county within six months of the election."

"I know what's coming. I knew it before I started. I say to these maligners that I live here in Missouri and always have and I live within a hundred miles of where I was born. Go there and inquire how I stand. Ask any minister there, Protestant or Catholic. They will give me as clean a bill of health as most any of these speakers can get from their congregations."

Teaches Sunday School Class. "Some folks will be startled when I tell you that I am an officer in the Presbyterian Church and teach a class in the Sunday school. Some people think I am an outlaw with a brace of pistols at my belt, going out to rob."

Farris' decision to refer in his speech to his indictments was reached after a conference here yesterday with a number of friends, who advised him that sooner or later in the campaign he would be compelled to meet publicly the fact that he had been indicted. He agreed with them that he might as well meet the accusations before they were made publicly.

Farris spoke to an audience of more than 400 persons. Before entering into a discussion of State issues, which were outlined in the Farris platform printed in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, he spoke for nearly an hour on the League of Nations, defending President Wilson, but supporting a league with reservations (if need be, he said), which did not destroy the purposes of the league.

STRIKERS IN FRANCE PLANNED SOVIET RULE

Had Organization in Seven Cities to Assume Rule if Move Succeeded.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 18.—Soviet rule in France was to have been established if the revolutionary strikes started May 1 had succeeded, according to the French police, who said today they had obtained complete evidence of this from documents they have obtained.

The police declare the bulk of the evidence was found among the papers seized at the residence of Souvarin, a Socialist editor, arrested yesterday on the charge of having plotted against the safety of the State. Other evidence, they state, was found at the home of Etienne Leveau, one of the secretaries of the federation of railroadmen, also arrested yesterday.

Seven Soviets Established.
The police says that seven Soviets had been established and were awaiting the success of the strikers to blossom forth as local governments in Orleans, Tours, Brest, Bordeaux, Marseilles, Strassbourg and Paris.

The secretary of Police Inspector Charles Diercq declared this afternoon he had sufficient evidence to cause the arrest of 10 or 12 of the extremist leaders on charges of plotting against the internal security of France, under the criminal code.

Diamonds, rubies, and sapphires from Moscow, and bank accounts showing huge deposits of rubles in Copenhagen banks for Souvarin and Charles Rappoport, one of the leaders of the Extremist movement in France, are reported to have been unearthed by the police.

Admits Aim of Strikes.
Rappoport, who was a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies in November elections, said today he expected to be arrested, and declared it was true that the aim of the May day strikes was to overthrow the existing rule in France.

"Why should we not use Bolshevik gold when British and French gold is used to fight us in Russia?" said Rappoport. "I accuse Jouhaux (president of the General Federation of Labor) of having sold us into the hands of the Government. Jouhaux is reactionary. Bourgeois. We are revolutionary Socialists."

25 PER CENT EXPRESS RATE INCREASE MEETS OPPOSITION

Hearings on Application Open to New York and Will Be Held in Other Cities.

NEW YORK, May 18.—A hearing on a petition filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the American Railway Express Co., asking permission to increase rates 10 to 25 per cent was held here yesterday by F. H. Barclay, examiner.

Statistical data showing increases in operating costs was presented by Charles A. Lutz, vice president. These increases, he testified, amounted to 86 per cent since 1914.

George S. Lee, traffic manager, testified the increase allowed in rates for first-class freight had been used as a basis in estimating the express rate increases required.

Attending the hearing were representatives of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, Merchants' Chamber of Commerce of Omaha, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Mo.; Atchison, Kan.; National Publishers' Association and National Wholesaler Grocers' Association.

The examination will be shifted to Chicago May 24 and later to other sections of the country.

UNION ELECTRIC INCREASE IN STEAM HEATING RATES OPPOSED

Twenty-One Firms to Employ Counsel to Fight Proposed Advance of 35 Cents Per 1000 Pounds.

Representatives of 21 downtown business firms met at Hotel Statler yesterday afternoon and determined to employ common counsel and engineering experts to oppose before the Public Service Commission the schedule of new rates for steam heating which the Union Electric Light and Power Co. purposes to put into effect June 1.

According to the company, the average increase in rates provided in the schedule is from 65 cents per 1000 pounds to $1 per 1000 pounds. Individual firms affected reported yesterday that the increased charge to them ran from 57 per cent, in the case of smaller users, to 91 per cent in the case of larger users.

The Union company furnishes steam heat to 140 customers in the downtown district. Another meeting of customers will be held Friday at 2 p. m. at Hotel Statler.

Costumes used in the big Margaret Anglin production of the same play three years ago are to be used by the principals, while the chorus and dancers have been provided with costumes especially designed for the occasion. Miss Mignon Rosenthal will be "Rosalind," Jean Wertheimer, "Frederick," Mea Green, "Orlando," Dorothy Dierbach, "Touchstone" and "Celia."

LIBRARIES REPORT SHORTAGE OF TRAINED WORKERS

St. Louis Library Experiencing Same Difficulty as Others, Due to Business Affording Higher Pay.

The St. Louis Public Library, in common with the public libraries in other large cities, is suffering from a shortage of trained employees, due, officials say, to low wages in comparison with the salaries paid by commercial houses.

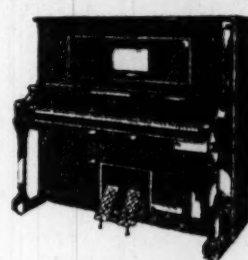

"The shortage is caused not so much by small salaries," Dr. Bostwick, the librarian, says, "as by the obvious difference between public institutions and commercial institutions, in that the commercial institution can meet the demand for higher wages by increasing the price of its product, while the public institution must wait, perhaps years, for legislation."

Vacancies are filled by untrained workers. During the fiscal year ending April 30, last, 235 employees in all departments left the staff. The total number employed is 256. The capacities of those who left the employment ranged from that of page at a salary of $40 a month, to assistant at an average salary of $115 a month, most of whom got business positions with an increase of 20 or 25 per cent.

Depletion of library personnel is becoming so acute throughout the country that the American Library Association has included measures for better wages in plans for the expenditure of its "Books for Everybody" fund of $2,000,000.

CLOTHING MAKERS TO DISCUSS PRICES

International Association, Meeting Here, Attaches Blame to Textile Mills.

The International Association of Garment Manufacturers, which opened its twenty-third annual convention today at Hotel Statler, will discuss prices of clothes in an effort to convince the public that the textile mills, and not the garment workers, are responsible for present high prices.

An official of the association, who would not permit the use of his name, said that just so long as the mills wished to pay for the entire cost of the plant in a single year, prices would remain high.

On the other hand, Sol Driven of the Cohn Export Co. of New York, in behalf of the mills, has a display in the booths of the Statler exhibition room which points to the cost of both material and labor as showing where the high cost really comes in.

W. V. Eaton of the Rice, Stix Dry Goods Co. admitted that the cost of material was high, but said that the entire blame should not be put on manufacturers of the finished product.

Supply of German Dyes.

Paul Hunter, representing a shirt and collar concern of Troy, N. Y., one of those who advocated the shipment of German dyes to this country before a senatorial commission at Washington, said that for the first time there was hope of getting a little relief in the dye situation through the arrival of 180,000 pounds of German dyes on the Noordam of the Holland-American line which reached New York last Saturday.

"You must remember we must depend on what is known as vat dyes in some cases," he said, "and this has figured in the cost of dyes to our trade. It has multiplied three and four times."

Galbraith Miller of Milwaukee, chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the association, said that he believed every manufacturer had come to the convention with the idea of seeing prices go down if some adjustment could be made whereby excessive costs of inter-handling, where each manufacturer blamed another for the increase, could be reduced.

"In 1914 I paid 12 cents per yard for duck where with to make sheepskin coats," he said. "The goods now 45 cents per yard. I used to get sheepskin at 10 cents per pound. Now it is 35 cents. You can see where the additional cost comes in."

"Cloth that used to cost $3 per yard now costs as high as $10," said W. B. Einstein of Syracuse. "One of the largest woolen manufacturers in the world used to produce an olive drab cloth at the lesser figure. You now cannot get it for the higher figure at all."

In making a rough appraisal of the increase in the cost of labor, several manufacturers agreed that the garment workers, who were getting $12 and $14 per week before the world war, now are averaging from $37.50 to $42 for a week of from 44 1/2 hours to approximately 46 hours.

The mill owners also cite their scale of wages as proof that they are not demanding such excessive profits as reported. It was said that labor had gone up more than 139 per cent, represented in some parts of the statement issued by W. Jett Lauck in Washington yesterday.

Inter-handling Charges.

The former secretary of the War Labor Board (Lauck) seems to think that an increase of 100 per cent in labor and 100 per cent in material adds just 100 per cent to the cost of the product, but that is not so," said Einstein. "The charge of inter-handling is greater. We have to pay storage at excessive rentals, which never occurred when we could ship our goods without being tied up by railroad congestion. The cost of shipping freight is higher. Then how about handling? It is easy to say that switchmen's wages are a certain figure, but where are the switchmen to come from? New York firms have paid huge sums to get their goods handled by truck boat even before the strike of the harbor men and the switchmen. All these conditions count. Overhead is higher than ever before. It has to be figured."

General Secretary A. F. Allison of the convention said that he hoped the meeting of the manufacturers and the producers of piece material would be aided by the display of machinery now on exhibition.

"If there is any lost motion somewhere, or if a manufacturer of finished product from piece material thinks he is not having his factory operated at the highest degree of efficiency, he may find some help here. The situation is such that every branch of the business should be willing to help bring down prices."

The general consensus of opinion among the manufacturers, however, was that prices will have to decline through a gradual readjustment of present conditions.

Allison said that, by tracing the cost of each article used in manufacture and of the manufacture itself, some decision might be arrived at.

"If we know, for instance, that the cost of the denim used in overalls is 70 per cent of the total cost, which it is in some cases, we have a basis to go on," he said. "This convention may bring out the bearing of cost of production on market prices."

$200,000 IN JEWELS SEIZED FROM MME. DE MUMM'S SISTER

Gems Taken on Adriatic as Mme. Treadwell Is About to Sail for New York.

By the Associated Press.

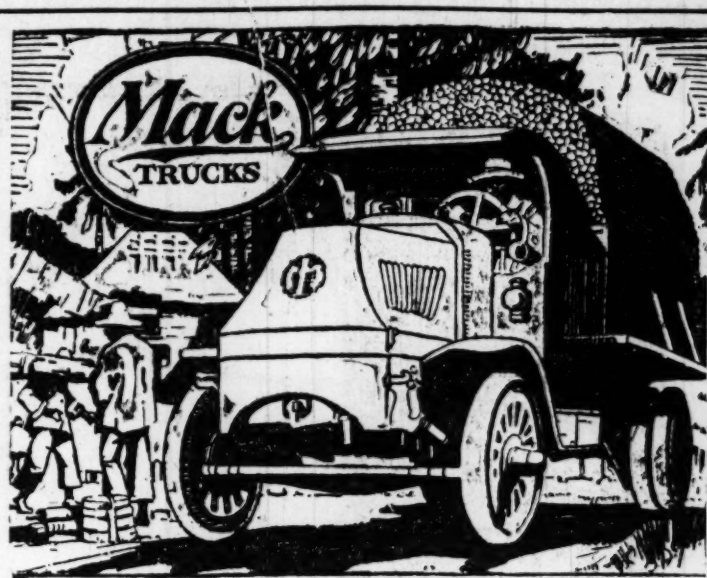

CHERBOURG, May 18.—It was learned yesterday that a large quantity of jewels, valued at a million francs, seized on the steamer Adriatic last Saturday as the vessel was about to sail for New York, were taken from Mme. Treadwell, a sister of Mme. Frances de Mumm, who died recently at Neuilly.

Mme. Treadwell, according to the Adriatic's passenger list, is accompanying the body of Mme. de Mumm, who was Frances Scoville of Seneca, Kan., before her marriage to Baron Walter de Mumm, French wine grower of German birth, who resumed his German citizenship when war broke out. His properties in France were seized and Mme. de Mumm had her American citizenship restored in October last to protect her interest in them. The jewels taken from Mme. Treadwell were deposited in the Bank of France, pending an investigation of their ownership. Mme. Treadwell, according to the authorities, declared the jewels were her own property, but it is said here that Baron de Mumm is attempting to hold them in France.

PARIS, May 18.—At the American Embassy here last night, it was said an official had induced the secretary to refuse to divulge information to the press regarding the seizure of jewels from Mme. Treadwell.

How Ladies Improve Looks!

"Many ladies, old and young, suffer a round of torture with their nerves, and many are so frail, thin and bloodless that their splendid features are lost sight of, while a vain attempt to conceal the angularity of the figure deceives no one but themselves and really excites the pity or ridicule of the world," said a well-known, largely employed practicing physician, in a recent lecture at a young ladies' college. "I do not mind exposing a little secret of mine to all such, as it can do no harm and may result in much happiness and health. It is simply this: Any thin, bloodless, nerve-tortured man or woman can become as fit as the fittest by taking regularly for several months an easily obtained pharmaceutical product known by the profession and pharmacists as three-grain hypo-nucleic tablets, put up in sealed packages with directions for home use."

VALESKA SURATT STARS ON ORPHEUM PROGRAM

Nate Leipzig, Card Trickster, and Ruth Royce, Comedienne, Also on Bill.

Valeska Suratt goes back to the West in her two-act sketch, "Scatlet," at the Orpheum this week. This must be so, as a notation on the program says the time is "1919 B. P. (before prohibition)." The motive of the play is primal enough to date back to the beginning of time. It turns on the desire of a profligate woman for the love of an honest man. Miss Suratt has the role of "Lady Billy," entertainer in a cafe frequented by crooks. David Strong, described as a "rich young athlete," drifts into the place and falls in love with her. He believes she will not return his love unless she thinks he is a crook, so he takes the name of a noted criminal and bullies and browbeats her into a mock marriage. She likes the rough stuff and is happy with her supposed cave-man until she learns of the deception. "She is ready to give him up and go her own way, but he proposes again, more gently this time, and the curtain goes down to the music of wedding bells."

Nate Leipzig, most facile of card trick performer, furnishes 20 minutes of mystifying and amusing entertainment. Ruth Royce, a ragtime comedienne, with unusual powers of mimicry and a genius for facial contortion, pleases those who are hoping against hope that jazz will escape the firing squad. Irving Fishon,

SHE WILL TAKE PART OF "FROLIC" IN PAGEANT

Miss Frances M. Ryan

a barytone formerly with Nora Bayes, sings classical and semi-classical songs in good musical comedy style.

The Seven Honey Boys are close harmony blackface entertainers of the minstrel type. Phil Baker is a monologist with a piano accompaniment for camouflage. On the bill also are Dippy Diers, a pantomimist in a table falling act, and Pat and Julia Levolo, wire walkers.

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, more if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent

They Have Found the Way to Beautiful Teeth

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Dental science has found a way to combat film on teeth. It has been tested for years by able authorities in clinical and laboratory tests. Now leading dentists everywhere advise its daily use.

The method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. This week we offer a 10-Day Tube to every home in this city, and we urge every home to get it. Let it prove itself.

Film is What Discolors

You can feel on your teeth a slimy film. It is ever-present, ever-forming. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The tooth brush doesn't end it. The ordinary dentifrice cannot dissolve it. So it accumulates and may do a ceaseless damage.

Most tooth troubles are now traced to that film. And now it is known why brushed teeth still discolor and decay. The reason lies in that clinging film which the old cleaning methods omit.

Cause of Decay

That film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus the film is the teeth's chief enemy.

It Can Be Ended

Dental science has for years sought a way to end that film, and the way has now been found.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digester of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

The way seems simple, but it is not. Pepsin must be activated. The usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth, so pepsin long seemed impossible.

What has been found is a harmless activating method. Now pepsin can be applied twice daily and left between the teeth. And millions of teeth are now being cleaned as they never were before.

Watch the Effects

We ask you to watch the effects. Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Compare this method with the old. Read the facts about it. Then decide for yourself what is best.

Tartar and Stain

are based on film. This 10-Day Tube will show you that they are avoidable. And so is tooth decay.

Look in Ten Days

See how white the teeth are—how they glisten. You can see that the film is gone. You will know that teeth can be kept forever whiter and cleaner and safer.

NO DISTURBANCES REPORTED AS FRENCH LEAVE FRANKFORT

American Authorities Hear Evacuation Was Orderly and Rapid.

By the Associated Press. COBLENZ, May 18.—American authorities here were informed yesterday from Mayence that all French troops which have been in Frankfurt and other centers in the Mainz district had returned to the Mayence bridgehead. Five hours were required for the French and Belgian units east of the Rhine to withdraw. No incidents or disturbances were reported during the day. Mayors of several of the smaller towns evacuated expressed appreciation of the attitude of the French upon withdrawing.

Details of the movement had been worked out beforehand and arrangements were completed with local German authorities on Sunday so the troops could be moved rapidly. Police officers were cautioned against permitting demonstrations and the walls of Frankfurt were plastered with posters enjoining any manifestations whatever.

MISSOURI WOMEN VOTERS IN SESSION AT JOPLIN

Will Discuss Plans to Be Demanded of Both Parties and Pass Judgment on Candidates.

By the Associated Press. JOPLIN, Mo., May 18.—With more than 200 delegates and visitors attending, the first annual congress of the Missouri League of Women Voters met here today to discuss plans to be demanded of the Democratic and Republican parties; to draw up a program of legislation the newly enfranchised voters will support and pass judgments upon the claims of candidates for state offices. Regarding the latter, officials said, the attitude of the candidates toward suffrage, prohibition and child welfare laws would be given particularly close scrutiny.

The organization is nonpartisan and many prominent Republican and Democratic women workers of the State were assisting in handling the congress. Speakers on subjects pertaining to social hygiene and economic problems are to address the delegates before adjournment tomorrow night.

LABOR COUNCIL HEAD HEATEN INTO INSENSIBILITY BY 2 MEN

Latest Victim of Chicago Fends Believes Other Officials of Stockyards Organizations Were Assailants.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, May 18.—The latest victim of Chicago labor feuds is John Kukulski, head of the Stockyards Labor Council, who today was in a hospital suffering from wounds, regarded as probably fatal. He was beaten and shot about midnight last night on his way home from a labor meeting. Before losing consciousness he named two other officials of the Stockyards Labor Council as the men he thought he recognized as his assailants. Recent charges and counter-charges of embezzlement were said to have caused bitterness among stockyards labor leaders and were believed to have been responsible for the attack.

In view of these reports the newspapers Evénement and Figaro have begun a movement to save the life of the poet.

From every standpoint this contest was a remarkable success. 7198 lists were submitted, most of them showing that a great deal of care had been used in compiling the words and demonstrating the fact that this contest had been of great educational value to the children in the improvement of their spelling. A number of the schools used the contest as a part of their daily work in the classroom. In many schools the children were given the privilege of schoolrooms and dictionaries after school hours to help them with their lists.

Congratulations to the Winners

To the winners, whose efforts have been crowned with success, we offer our sincere congratulations and trust that each will consider that his or her work has been worth while. To those who did not receive a prize (necessarily a great number in a contest of general interest) we offer our most sincere thanks for the interest shown.

We acknowledge with pleasure the conscientious discharge of duty on the part of the committee which determined the winners.

OLD LOCOMOTIVE HUMILIATED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The De Witt Clinton, the first steam rail locomotive to be operated in this State and the second in the country, yesterday received the second great humiliation of its life.

In 1831, in attempting an "official run" from Albany to Schenectady, it broke down and was assisted to its destination by horses. Yesterday, almost a century later, it was dragged through the streets of New York from the shops where it has been stored to the Grand Central Station, where it has been placed on exhibition, by large motor trucks, the horse's successor. The old "iron horse" without its tender, weighed only 9420 pounds.

FEW BERLIN PAPERS COMMENT ON U. S. PEACE RESOLUTION

Lokal Anzeiger, Skeptical About Vote, Says Many Obstacles Must Yet Be Overcome.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, May 18.—Only a few Berlin newspapers comment editorially on the vote in the United States Senate on the Knox resolution ending the state of war between the United States and Germany. The Tageblatt believes the United States has "found a convenient solution to the situation growing out of the rejection of the Versailles treaty" but suggests it will be necessary to enter into friendly negotiations with the United States for the adjustment of many mooted issues before normal commercial relations can be resumed. It says that among these is the question of the treatment of Germany property confiscated in the United States.

Suggestion is made by the Lokal Anzeiger that news of the vote in the Senate would be "received with an ample measure of skepticism, as numerous parliamentary obstacles are yet to be overcome." Liberal organs express the belief the action of the Senate may materially aid in enabling American financiers to take up the problem of aiding German reconstruction in a practical manner.

HABEAS CORPUS FOR MAN WHO TRIED TO PAWN BRACELET

Held by Police After Displaying Platinum Ornament Set With 30 Diamonds, Worth $6000.

A writ of habeas corpus was issued in the Circuit Court today against Chief of Police O'Brien and Chief of Detectives Hanneman, requiring them to show cause this afternoon why they are holding Edward Bragbario, 45 years old.

Bragbario was arrested a week ago in a pawn shop near Tenth street and Franklin avenue when he tried to borrow $1000 on a platinum bracelet set with 30 diamonds, which jewelers have since valued at $6000. He says he was for several years a porter in a San Francisco saloon and saved his money. Five years ago, he said, he bought the bracelet for $2000 from a man who needed money. After prohibition went into effect he started to Chicago. When he reached St. Louis he needed money and tried to pawn the bracelet.

Jewelers who examined it say that identification marks had been filed off. Photographs of the man and the bracelet have been sent to the San Francisco police.

APPROPRIATION BILL PASSES WITH VETOED FEATURE OUT

House Renames Provision for Congressional Control of Government Publications.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 18.—The $104,000,000 legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was passed unanimously by the House after it had been redrafted by the Appropriations Committee, to meet the objection that led to its veto by President Wilson.

The President held that Congress sought, by a rider, to interfere with executive functions in giving the Joint Congressional Committee on Printing supervision of Government publications. The bill now goes to the Senate.

How to Keep Your Baby Always Well and Happy

Just see that the daily functions are regular and normal.

YOU can't expect the little ones to be happy and playful when the head feels dull and the stomach bloated. The normal habit of children is to be happy and when you notice them cross and fretful you will usually find constipation is responsible.

Perhaps they have missed that daily function so necessary to comfort and health. Look at the tongue and see if the breath is bad. Watch for belching. These are the tell-tale symptoms of constipation. Tonight give a little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which you can buy at any drug store, and it will act in the morning and the troublesome symptoms promptly disappear.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. Unlike the harsher physics it acts gently and without gripping so that while it cleanses the system it can also be given to a tiny baby with perfect safety. Thousands of American families would not think of being without a bottle in the house for the emergency arises almost daily when it is needed.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

HOUSE IN DISPUTE OVER WAR NITRATE PROGRAM

Republicans Condemn Muscle Shoals Operations as Extravagant—Democrats Defend It.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 18.—Two reports, one by Republicans, condemning the Government's entire war-time nitrate program and charging reckless waste and extravagance, and the other by Democrats, defending it and charging partisan bias by the majority, were presented today to the House by a special committee.

The majority submitted recommendations for future disposal of the Muscle Shoals properties. Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the Democratic member, declared this was beyond its province. Garrett indicated he would make a point of order against the report on the ground. Members said this would open the way for the biggest political fight in the House since the War Investigating Committee was created.

Charging the Air Nitrates Corporation, builders of the Muscle Shoals plant, with failure to perform its contract, the majority recommended to Congress that no further sums be paid it on account, and that civil suits be instituted for recovery and that the whole question of pay be threshed out in the Court of Claims. It also was recommended that the Government pursue such remedies as might be decided by the Attorney-General.

After asking Congress to sell materials stored at the Toledo and Cincinnati plants and retain the Sheffield (Alabama) plant, the committee recommended that the Government lease the deserted villages built for officers at Sheffield at a cost of $12,000,000.

The principal recommendation by the majority related to the big Muscle Shoals plant, costing $75,000,000. Being too valuable to scrap, the majority recommended that it be leased and converted into a fertilizer plant for the sale of products direct to farmers with the right of the Government to take it over in time of threatened war. Further expenditures at Muscle Shoals were opposed.

RARE SEA OTTER AND RUSSIAN SABLE PELTS TO BE SOLD TODAY

Some of Otter Skins Bring $2000 Each—160,000 Mink Yesterday Brought $1,000,000.

Today's offering at the fur sale at the International Fur Exchange is 7500 Russian sable, 37 Japanese sable and nine sea otter, now almost a curiosity because the killing of otter in waters controlled by the United States is prohibited.

Sable pelts are only about a foot in length with a tail about half the length of the body. In color the fur ranges from a light to a deep chestnut brown. The darker skins are the more valuable, those taken from animals living in the far recesses of Siberian forests. Some rare sables are nearly black. Japanese sable has not the value of Siberian sable, whose habitat now is confined to Eastern Siberia and Kamchatka.

Most sea otter that reaches the market comes from Japan. The pelts are very valuable, sometimes bringing as high as $2000. Sea otter is the most durable of all fur. Yesterday's sale of 160,000 mink brought approximately $1,000,000 at prices ranging from $40 for the best skins, $10 to $12 for the medium grades and $5 to $7 for the inferior skins. These prices were a decline of 30 per cent from February.

PROHIBITION INCREASES DEMAND FOR PLAYING CARDS

Prohibition, which stationers expected to reduce the use of playing cards with the passing of saloons, has seemingly increased their use. Edward B. Gell, a stationer of Evansville, Ind., said at the opening session of the Wholesale Stationers' Association at Hotel Jefferson yesterday. At any rate, during the time prohibition has been in effect the sales of playing cards have increased 25 per cent, he said, although sales had been expected to be cut in half.

Makers of playing cards are far behind in their orders and the stationers, he said, are having difficulty obtaining their quota of decks. Much more card playing is going on in homes, it was reported.

Among reports to be heard today is that on the pencil situation. H. A. Vandervice, representing Eastern pencil manufacturers, who is attending the convention, said that a shortage of women workers is bringing about a shortage of pencils.

Truthful Pictures

THE part played by illustrations in any appeal to the public is so very important that we spare no effort to give them that exact value best calculated to reveal their potency in the most attractive and convincing manner.

This is a matter of expert make-ready and press-work. The underlaying and overlaying to give every line, shadow and high light its proper value and then to watch each sheet that the ink runs true to the check proof.

Zincs, halftones, duo-tones and three and four color process plates all require individual treatment which is seen to by pressmen trained to understand the vital relation of truthful pictures to the success of the folders, booklets or catalogues produced by us.

Emphasis is laid upon this phase of our advertising printing service as having to do with the volume of returns from interested prospects and especially from those who may at a future time be in the market for the products promoted and who should therefore carry a pleasing and well-defined recollection of the project.

It will be a pleasure to show you specimens of fine press-work and to illustrate its bearing on the effectiveness of business literature. A capable and courteous representative will call on request.

President Wilson Is My Platform

ON April 6th I filed with the Secretary of State my declaration as a Democratic Candidate for United States Senator. The Globe-Democrat says "Long is the only Candidate." In order that the public may know the facts, shall I ask for an injunction preventing further misstatements in the Globe-Democrat? I am solidly backed by the Wets all over the State.

JOHN C. HIGDON,
Wet Democratic Candidate for U. S. Senator.

Why you are interested in an American merchant marine

PATRIOTIC Americans agree that a merchant marine is necessary to the Nation's welfare in peace and vital to its safety in war.

For decades before the war our flag was rarely met at sea.

America could not meet the competition of foreign ships, more cheaply operated and often fostered by government aid.

We have a great merchant fleet.
We must keep it.

But we must maintain American standards both in the shipyard and on the sea.

The Seaman's Act of 1915 improved conditions on board American ships and awakened a new interest in seafaring.

Legislation now pending in Congress aims to perpetuate our war-built merchant marine.

American labor is vitally interested—

Because busy shipyards employ tens of thousands of men (350,000 during the war); there are as many outside of but dependent on the shipyards; ships employ thousands more; Because our shipyards and ships cannot exist—much less pay high wages—unless wise shipping laws are enacted;

Because more ships mean more foreign trade, which spells more work for American labor. What department store would deliver its goods in its competitor's motor vans?

This legislation declares that the policy of the United States is "to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage" a merchant marine.

This policy merits the support of every American.

SPORTS SALAD

The Passing Show.

THE Cards have vacated the cellar where for 24 hours they'd been. We shouted "Hurrah!" When the boys of McGraw came back to their home and dropped in.

The weatherman's doing his darndest. To put the old game on the blink. The city is wet. But let us forget. A guy can get nothing to drink.

The Browns won a frolic from Johnson. And added a lot to our joys. The Fireball King. Didn't have a darned thing. That couldn't be saved by our boys.

Three cheers for the great Alexander. More fame he is bound to achieve. For old Alex the Great. Has now won seven straight. And he has a lot more up his sleeve.

The autoists knock the "Jay Walker." And rave till they're blue in the face. But no peace they'd disturb. If they'd stick to the curb. And use a conservative pace.

Carranza continues retreating. They'll capture him soon it is feared. With his army he flees. While the frolicsome breeze. Is having great sport with his beard.

I WONDER. If Sunday's contribution to the wet column came under the head of "occasional showers." wonder what the weather man's idea of a steady rain would be.

Must have thought he was doping up weather for the Duckpin League. The largest crowd in the history of the Polo Ground turned out Sunday to see Babe Ruth make home runs. They selected the wrong day, as a two-bagger was the best Babe could do.

The White Sox turned down Joe Tinker's offer of $5000 for Grover Lowmiller. Another illustration of the uncertainties of baseball. Evans and Fabrique of the Kaysee Blues have jumped to the Steel League. They do say the Steel League is the place to go for the iron men.

Running for President is the latest outdoor sport in Mexico. Carranza is leading 'em all at present. DISGUISED. They say Carranza had a close shave the other day. Nobody would know him without his whiskers.

Can this picture of one of our candidates for United States Senate in the act of putting on a pair of skates be a subtle appeal to the wet element?

Piker Alumni at Last Awake.

THE arrival here this morning of George L. Rider, formerly director of athletics at University of Maine, and, before that, coach at Miami University, O., is another evidence that the athletic sloth, which once characterized Washington University alumni, has been cast off.

For more than a year the graduates of the Pikeway have put the shoulder to the wheel in a manner that indicates the city soon will take its logical place as the head of the Valley Conference circuit.

Mr. Rider is a notable football, baseball and athletic man. His teams in past years have made really enviable records. He comes so well recommended that if he is eventually retained, there is hardly a doubt that the successful regime of Coach Dick Rutherford will be duplicated.

The committee that will consider the naming of a coach is composed of alumni, faculty members and students in equal proportions. With the chancellor as chairman. But there is little doubt that the alumni are furnishing the spark that is motivating the university to the front.

Lynch-Moore Fight Postponed When Joe Fails to Make Weight
NEW YORK, May 18.—All fight managers are not strutting about the land with a hay hook in each hand. At least not Nate Lewis. His boy, Pal Moore, was scheduled to box Joe Lynch 12 rounds at the Armory A. A. last night. The weight agreed upon was 118 pounds. 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The boxers had posted a forfeit of $100 to guarantee an appearance at that hour.

When the men got on the scales, Lynch tipped the beam at 115 and Moore at St. Louis Favored As Site For Army Olympic Tryouts

Major E. V. Graves Tells Chamber of Commerce Only $2000 Guarantee Is Needed.

KANSAS CITY BIDS $5000

Chicago Also Is Seeking First Nation-Wide Service Championships.

Unless the Chamber of Commerce promises financial aid to the amount of $2000, St. Louis will lose one of the most notable athletic enterprises ever attempted in the United States and the very first one of its particular character ever planned.

This is the contemplated national athletic championships of the United States army, open to all departments and camps in the country and for which sectional meets to determine representative teams are being conducted throughout the country.

The proposed events will include track and field sports, and boxing, swimming and wrestling matches. The meet is scheduled to take place July 2, 3 and 5.

The games will also serve as Olympic trials in several events, promised by the Olympic committee but not yet particularized.

All enlisted men and officers in all branches of service are eligible to compete in the sectional contests at which representatives to the national meet are chosen.

Maj. Eliot V. Graves, officer in charge of athletics and recreation for the United States army, was in the city yesterday in the interest of this event and interviewed Mayor Kiel, Chamber of Commerce officials and others concerning the project.

St. Louis is preferred by Maj. Graves to Chicago or Kansas City, rival seekers of the honor of holding these games, because of its central location and because of the opportunity to take care cheaply of a large number of athletes afforded by Jefferson Barracks, where the men could be quartered for three weeks prior to the contests.

Kansas City Has Bid $5000.

Kansas City is seeking this event in earnest, Maj. Graves states, and has already promised $5000 toward the promotion of the project. Not having the facilities afforded by the barracks, the holding of the games in Kansas City would be a more expensive affair and consequently the

County High School Track Athletes Hold Annual Meet This Afternoon

Track and field athletes representing high schools in St. Louis County will compete in their annual meet at Francis Field this afternoon. This year's event promises to be the closest that has been held in years. For the first time in six seasons, the Webster High School does not enter the games as an assured winner, but on the other hand will probably be closely pressed by Kirkwood.

University City and Clayton high schools will also enter the scoring, judging from the work of those squads at the recent State high-school meet at Columbia.

Local high schools will also come in for their share of track work this week, when the preliminaries of the interscholastic meet are held at Francis Field Saturday morning. The largest entry in the history of the event will compete, 300 names having been entered as participants. Soldan, with 70 athletes, leads the field, while McKelvey, with 40, has the smallest number.

Meet Receipts $77.

Although less than 600 persons witnessed Saturday's meet at Francis Field, the gate receipts totaled a greater amount than those of any outdoor meet held in this city in recent years. Rodowe Abeken, announced yesterday that $77 had been taken in. With the field, the attendants and many of the prizes gratis, the municipal association was thus able to hold the games without incurring a deficit.

larger sum would be needed to underwrite the games, if held there.

The meet is to be open to the public and the absence of an admission charge prevents any reliance on gate receipts to defray the overhead. The site for the games has not been named, but Rodowe Abeken, superintendent of Public Recreation for St. Louis, has offered the use of the public parks for the track and field events, the Municipal Theater for the wrestling and boxing and the Fairgrounds pool for the swimming events. It is estimated that as two holidays are included in the three dates mentioned, many thousands of persons would view the various contests.

Over 300 Athletes Expected.

Maj. Graves stated that when all the camp and sectional elimination meets are concluded, the teams selected to represent the various posts, camps, etc., at the final championships will include from 300 to 500 officers and men. The squad will for three weeks be under special trainers and coaches to properly fit them for their best performances.

In conjunction with the games it is planned to hold a fireworks exhibition handled by men from the Chemical warfare branch of the service. The event, being something of an experiment, will attract nation-wide attention. The athletic department

Tallman Attracts Attention.

Ward Tallman, the 21-year-old Princeton student, attracted the greatest attention at the meet. Tallman's time of 1:11.5 in the 100-yard dash and 22:2.5 in the 220 was easily the best work of the day. The rangy sprinter said after the meet that he intended to enter university in the fall, but as yet had not decided which to attend.

Epsilon Eta Plans Meet.

Track and field performers will have another opportunity to compete early this summer. It is announced that the Epsilon Eta Club is planning an invitation meet at which all of the best athletes in the city will attend. Unless the Western A. A. U. games are held this season, there probably will not be any other competitions. Because of this being the year of the Olympics, there is some chance that the W. A. A. U. meet will not be held.

Case of Bob Probst.

Two weeks ago Bob Probst, the Janri mid-distance man, said that he would give up running permanently if he did not win at the Municipal A. A. Games. Saturday, Probst entered the quarter and the half, finishing neither. He was entered in the 440 simply to set the pace, and consequently, it was not surprising when he dropped out. However, the stands could not understand his action in dropping out of the half when he held third position and was but 40 yards from the tape.

of the army has been rebuilt up since the war-time athletic commission retired. The Educational and Recreation Department is now in charge, with Maj. Graves as its head. The country is divided into six departments, not counting those in its foreign possessions. Each department is divided into districts and each district into posts, camps and stations. The whole is governed by a council composed of the heads of departments and districts.

The games, which are offered to this city, are the first national contests attempted under the new plan of army athletic government.

ALTITUDE RECORD FOR 4 BROKEN

Coombs, With Three Passengers, Reaches Height of 17,150 Feet.

By the Associated Press.

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 18.—The world's airplane altitude record for a pilot and three passengers was broken here yesterday by Clarence E. Coombs, who rose to the height of 17,150 feet.

This is 50 feet higher than the altitude reached by Capt. Lowell H. Smith, commandin' officer of Puryear Field in El Centro, Cal., last Monday.

ENGLISH TENNIS CRITIC SAYS FRENCH MAY BEAT AMERICAN DOUBLES TEAM

NEW YORK, May 18.—According to S. Wallis Meyers, the famous English lawn tennis critic, the American players of the Davis cup team may meet with a reversal when they face the French team. It is the belief that the weakness of the United States doubles will account for this result. Among the players in the tournament on the courts of the Harmon Club here is the opinion prevalent that William M. Johnston, the Californian, and William T. Tilden II, the Pennsylvanian, will make up a team most difficult for any nation to beat.

In writing of the prospects, the English expert says:

"Speculation on probable results may well be left until the dates and venues are definitely fixed. It is understood that all of the eliminating ties will be decided in this country, which means that the international match committee will have to find arenas for five three-day matches. The contests between France and America, between ourselves and the victors and between South Africa and the winner of the second match promise to be full of interest, and probably full of uncertainty."

"France has selected Gobert, Laurents, Decugis and Brugnon to defend its interests, and it is quite conceivable that this team, familiar with English turf, may dash America's hopes in its first trial."

Grimm Wins for Pirates.

NICHOLSON THOROUGHLY EXAMINES SHAMROCK IV.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Charles E. Nicholson, designer of Shamrock IV, who arrived from England Sunday, had his first thorough inspection here yesterday of the yacht with which Sir Thomas Lipton hopes to win the America's cup in July.

At the end of the inspection Nicholson stated he was satisfied with the way his plans had been carried out. He suggested one or two minor alterations. "If I were designing a cup boat today," said Nicholson, "undoubtedly she would be different from the Shamrock IV. It is six years since the craft was built. We have learned a great deal since then, principally because aviation has given us a lot of valuable data. I think the designers of all three cup boats would do things differently today than they did in 1914."

Rooney Knocks Out Green.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., May 18.—Jack Rooney, Los Angeles, knocked out Bobby Green, Memphis, Tenn., in the second round of their scheduled 12-round bout here last night. They are middleweights. George Pinneau of Albuquerque won a wrestling match from Kall Pasha of Wichita, Kan., by throwing him in 21 seconds.

When you tumble out of bed in the morning and grab it for a quick shave before the whistle blows, you know

No man who is tool-wise has to learn how to use the Gillette Big Fellow. He takes to it naturally, as to any other workmanlike implement. When its hard-tempered, double-edged blade has delivered many

Common Sense

TODAY, most people think twice before paying prevailing high prices for commodities—your purchases are based on "common sense." In the selection of your cigar, you are also guided by "common sense." That's why White Owl is so popular. It's a "common sense" cigar.

White Owl's "common sense" is unchanging, too—right in price and high in quality. The tobacco is carefully cured by experts. The mellow fragrance of White Owl never varies. And the long Invincible shape, with tapering ends, gives White Owl the appearance of a much more expensive cigar. White Owl looks and smokes like an aristocrat.

White Owl quality is guaranteed by the tremendous resources and long experience of the General Cigar Company, Inc.—a fact that assures you of good "common sense" cigar value. Besides, White Owl appeals to your "common sense."

 I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, and remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Fannie Hurst's Philosophy.
 To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 The Igorrotes, natives of Northern Luzon, are the only people I ever heard of whose peculiar mental slant is such that trial marriages are an established custom. This old world does not care to copy after them, it seems, and I do not believe that the institution of marriage will ever be reformed on the Fannie Hurst plan.
 It seems to me that Dorothy Dix and Mary Roberts Rinehart have preserved fairly well their individuality though married on the old-established order.
 For husband and wife to meet and sit beside each other in a theater by mere accident under circumstances that necessitated an introduction must be fine and romantic; but being a mere unit in this world and not possessing "soul temperament," I am unable to appreciate it.
 Mr. Danielson speaks about having "freedom" and "a night out" without having to make any showpiece excuses, although he does not explain what he means by freedom or a night out. To my mind, I think it a good thing to have someone check us up on our freedom.
 Does anyone believe that Romeo and Juliet, in their "supreme happiness," would have found more than two breakfasts a week irksome?
 "Along the highway of progress are the broken images of the past," but I am positive that the old institution of marriage is not one of them.

It Pays to Advertise.
 To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 Now that bond-issue postmortems are in order, it is interesting to notice that the only item definitely relating to the Department of Public Welfare which was carried was the item providing for a large municipal farm, and that proposal was the most expensive of all similar proposals. But that item received a great deal of publicity, due to certain conditions, in the institutions and to such publicity I attribute the success of the proposal. That publicity was unpleasant, no doubt, but it was a small price to pay for such great public gain. Accordingly, I suggest to his honor the Mayor that he express to those patients at Koch Hospital who started the publicity and to certain members of the Central Council of Social Agencies and to the newspapers the thanks of a grateful administration.
 JOHN HOWARD LEVER.

Reservoir Park Paths.
 To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 The city has recently made new paths in Reservoir Park, about three yards wide, covered with rocks as large as good-sized eggs to a depth of about two or three inches. Are these rocks going to be crushed or left as they are? The paths are nearly finished and as yet there is no sign of evidence that they are going to be crushed into gravel for walking. What are the paths in the park for, if not to walk on?
 In rainy weather, when the ground is wet and damp, it is necessary to walk on the rocks when going through the park, and walking on them hurts the soles of the feet, marks and scratches the footwear, is unsteady, and requires great skill in balancing one's self.
 If one walks on the grass, as everyone is doing in nice weather, these paths were covered with rocks, there will soon be no grass at all, and in the parks, the grass is supposed to have free rein. No one is using these paths now, and what good are they going to be if not used?
 M. A. F.

Fares High Enough.
 To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 In an issue of your paper a few nights ago there was a statement made by some of the U. R. employees that the public would be willing to pay a higher rate of fare, so as to enable them to get what they are asking, namely, 75, 80 and 85 cents per hour.
 Would like to know where they got any such information? Certainly not from the 35 or 40 cent per hour employees, or from the 12 or 15 per week girls, both of whom are in the majority.
 If they would leave it to a vote of the public, there would not be more than 5 per cent voting for a higher fare, and that 5 per cent would be only from people within walking distance or people who ride to work in their own cars.

Appreciation of Kenrick Council.
 To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 Referring to your editorial of Sunday, the 15th instant, regarding the educational work of our order for the executive men, I desire to extend to you on behalf of Kenrick Council our sincere appreciation of the recognition extended to this work.

Realizing fully the "power of the press" and knowing the work we have undertaken merits public commendation, another proof of your metropolitan pliancy which characterizes your sense of fairness and justice.
 This work is naturally intended for the workers or producing class, and may I not be permitted to add that your editorial is in perfect harmony with the late lamented Joseph Pulitzer.

This communication represents the unanimous opinion of this council and is not that of any individual or faction, and acting upon the expressed desire of the entire council, I have been requested to communicate this view to you and through you to your associates.

WE HAVE AMERICA.

Henry P. Davison, head of the Red Cross, has brought his picture of chaos and starvation in Central and Eastern Europe into the wrong forum.
 It is a terrible picture. On the canvas are millions of human beings helplessly wailing in the mire of idleness, want and despair. Their economic system, their industrial and financial organizations, have broken down. They have no food and no means of producing food; they have no clothing and no means of producing clothing; their money has no value. The transportation systems of Central Europe have broken down for lack of capital and equipment. There is no stable, orderly Government and the factors of self-supporting, progressive society are top-sy-turvy and have ceased to work. White civilization in Central Europe is in danger of collapse, involving all Europe in its ruin.

Mr. Davison doesn't ask for charity for these wretched survivors of the war cataclysm. The appeal to benevolence is irresistible, but he asks for mere loans, for credits and co-operation in rehabilitating their financial, industrial and commercial systems. He appeals to enlightened selfishness. He asks us to join the crippled nations of Europe in saving these people from utter ruin, starvation and despair; in saving white civilization from collapse, so that all may enjoy the benefits of the survival of these peoples and of white civilization. He wants a competent, trustworthy commission appointed to learn the needs of these peoples and the Government to undertake, with other Governments, to supply them with means to revive their sustaining industrial activities.

What folly! Wait until the wise men of the Senate tell Mr. Davison where he and his starving European peoples get off. It will be beyond the three-mile zone of American shores. What care we whether Europe goes to wrack and starves or not? What care we for white civilization outside of America? Let famine and disease stalk unchecked in Europe; let the Continent reek with corpses and chaos seize the birthplace of civilization. Let Europe become a wilderness until the hordes of the Orient reapeople its desert hills and valleys and view with disdainful wonder the ruins of its Christian temples. We have America. We have all the resources of America. We will feed ourselves with American food; we will clothe ourselves with American clothing; we will produce our own materials for America; we will run our factories for America. We will get rich trading with ourselves. Let us build up our own civilization and let the world and world civilization go hang.

Have we not the heart of a great continent, washed by the waters of the boundless oceans? Have we not the best men and women in the world; the greatest inventive genius, the highest human capacity and energy? Go to, thou fool! Let us keep these powers and resources for ourselves. Let us stand alone on the earth. America for Americans alone; Americans for America alone. Let us be sufficient unto ourselves in the one oasis of the desert waste of the world.

Besides, we have to elect a President and decide what party shall hold power and office in the United States. The far-seeing statesmen at Washington are too busy deciding the fate of political parties for the next four years to bother about rescuing Europe from ruin, and saving civilization.

It is infinitely more important to each statesman that his party govern America, even if it be the last remnant of civilized nations, than that any other party wield American power and fill American offices in a world of peace and plenty. What are civilization and human welfare and world trade to the spoils of office in rich America?

The French will be extinct in 200 years, says Mr. Hobson, if they keep on drinking wine and the English will be a doddering, decrepit tribe. But if France and Great Britain hop aboard our water wagon all three nations may eventually reach the heights of culture now occupied by the abstemious Turk.

SEEING AMERICA FIRST IN 1920.
 All war-time restrictions on the issue of passports to American tourists, except those destined for a few designated countries, have been removed by the United States. While, however, Americans intending to go abroad will find it easier to obtain passports before leaving home, many of the Western European countries most frequented by our tourists still enforce against strangers the irksome passport requirements put in effect during the period of emergency.

Reports from over there make it plain that the tourist role is one continuous nightmare. Tedious passport formalities must be observed on leaving a country, on crossing a national boundary line and on arrival at destination. Because of the number on like errands each formality often consumes hours. Owing to the lack of rolling stock trains are crowded in a sense of which even rush-hour traffic on American street cars gives small conception. Hotels are so overrun that obtaining shelter at each new point reached is a work of exhaustion. Passing the custom houses, formerly attended with such courtesy and ease, is now a dreadful ordeal. And tourist costs before the war, exorbitant as they were, afford no standard for estimating costs at present. Each innkeeper, guide, cabman and other foreigner who fastens himself onto the tourist trade to earn a living seems determined to collect the entire war loss from every American tourist he meets.

The present Europe can offer nothing to the sight-seer to pay for experiences so frightful. The year 1920 is another admirable year in which to continue the excellent practice of seeing America first.

Senor Carranza is trying hard to relieve Mexico of worrying about what to do with its ex-Presidents.

PRICES, PROFITS AND WAGES.

A very interesting contribution to the extensive literature of living costs is being made by W. Jett Lauck, consulting economist of the railroad brotherhoods. As attorney for the railroad men he is undertaking to prove the justice of their claims for an advance in wages, but in a sense Mr. Lauck may be regarded as attorney for the ultimate consumer everywhere in the United States.

The analyses of commodity prices submitted by Mr. Lauck have to do with sugar, shoes, canned goods and, lastly, men's clothing. In every instance he has quoted figures. There is no rhetoric, no abusive generalities, in the Lauck system. He compares prices and profits today with during-the-war times and with pre-war times and shows where profits have mounted to unprecedented heights. Discussing sugar, for example, he charges huge profits to the refiners and brokers, a charge which was in effect corroborated in St. Louis last week by the head of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association. In the item of shoes the Lauck analysis fixes immense profits at the doors of the packers who have charged outrageous prices for hides, and others. The packers are also charged with profiteering in canned goods.

In men's clothing, according to the Lauck report, there has been profiteering all along the line, from the manufacturer to the retailer. In support of that assertion are submitted the profits of the country's largest woolen manufacturing corporation, which have risen from $1,600,000 a year before the war to $3,000,000 during 1916-18; also the profits of a clothing manufacturer, which have jumped from $859,000 in 1912-14 to $2,200,000 last year, and, finally, the retailer, who is now getting a profit of $22.77 on a suit which, before the war, yielded him $9.46.

The glib excuse that high wages are the cause of present prices is false, according to Lauck. It is not high wages, but excessive profits, that explain extortionate prices. Labor is not the profiteer, but the victim, and, in behalf of his clients, the railroad men, Mr. Lauck insists that justice demands that their wages be advanced. To this demand may be added the demand of consumers that prices come down.

If the sun stays off of the job a few more days there will be no Missouri strawberry crop to add to the burdens of the railroad.

JOAN OF ARC, PATRIOT AND SAINT.

A vast controversy that has raged through the centuries over the question as to whether Joan of Arc was an impostor or one inspired of heaven, must be said to have come to an end in the elaborate ceremony of solemnity and beauty at St. Peter's Church at Rome. She is listed with those whose memory is to be held in devotion by the pious and becomes St. Joan.

It was on May 30, 1412, that this most interesting woman was burned by the English as a sorceress at Rouen, in France. It has, accordingly, taken the world 489 years to come to a full appreciation of her work and character and do her justice, an almost unexampled instance of the persistence of calumny and false judgment. The utmost that even France was prepared for a long time to claim for her was that she was a singularly disinterested patriot. The half-century preceding the impressive service of canonization at Rome was marked by a gradual change in the public opinion of the world as to the nobility of character and purity of conduct of the Maid of Orleans.

Among French literature devoted to her career is a ponderous work of five volumes printed more than 70 years ago for the correction of erroneous impressions. Another in four volumes treats of her as a tactician and strategist. Our own Mark Twain had a part in contributing to the new estimate of the French martyr among English-speaking peoples. His "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," in typical Mark Twain vein, was published in 1896, six years before the preliminary ceremony of beatification in the long ecclesiastical process of determining and recognizing the authenticity of claims to special sanctity.

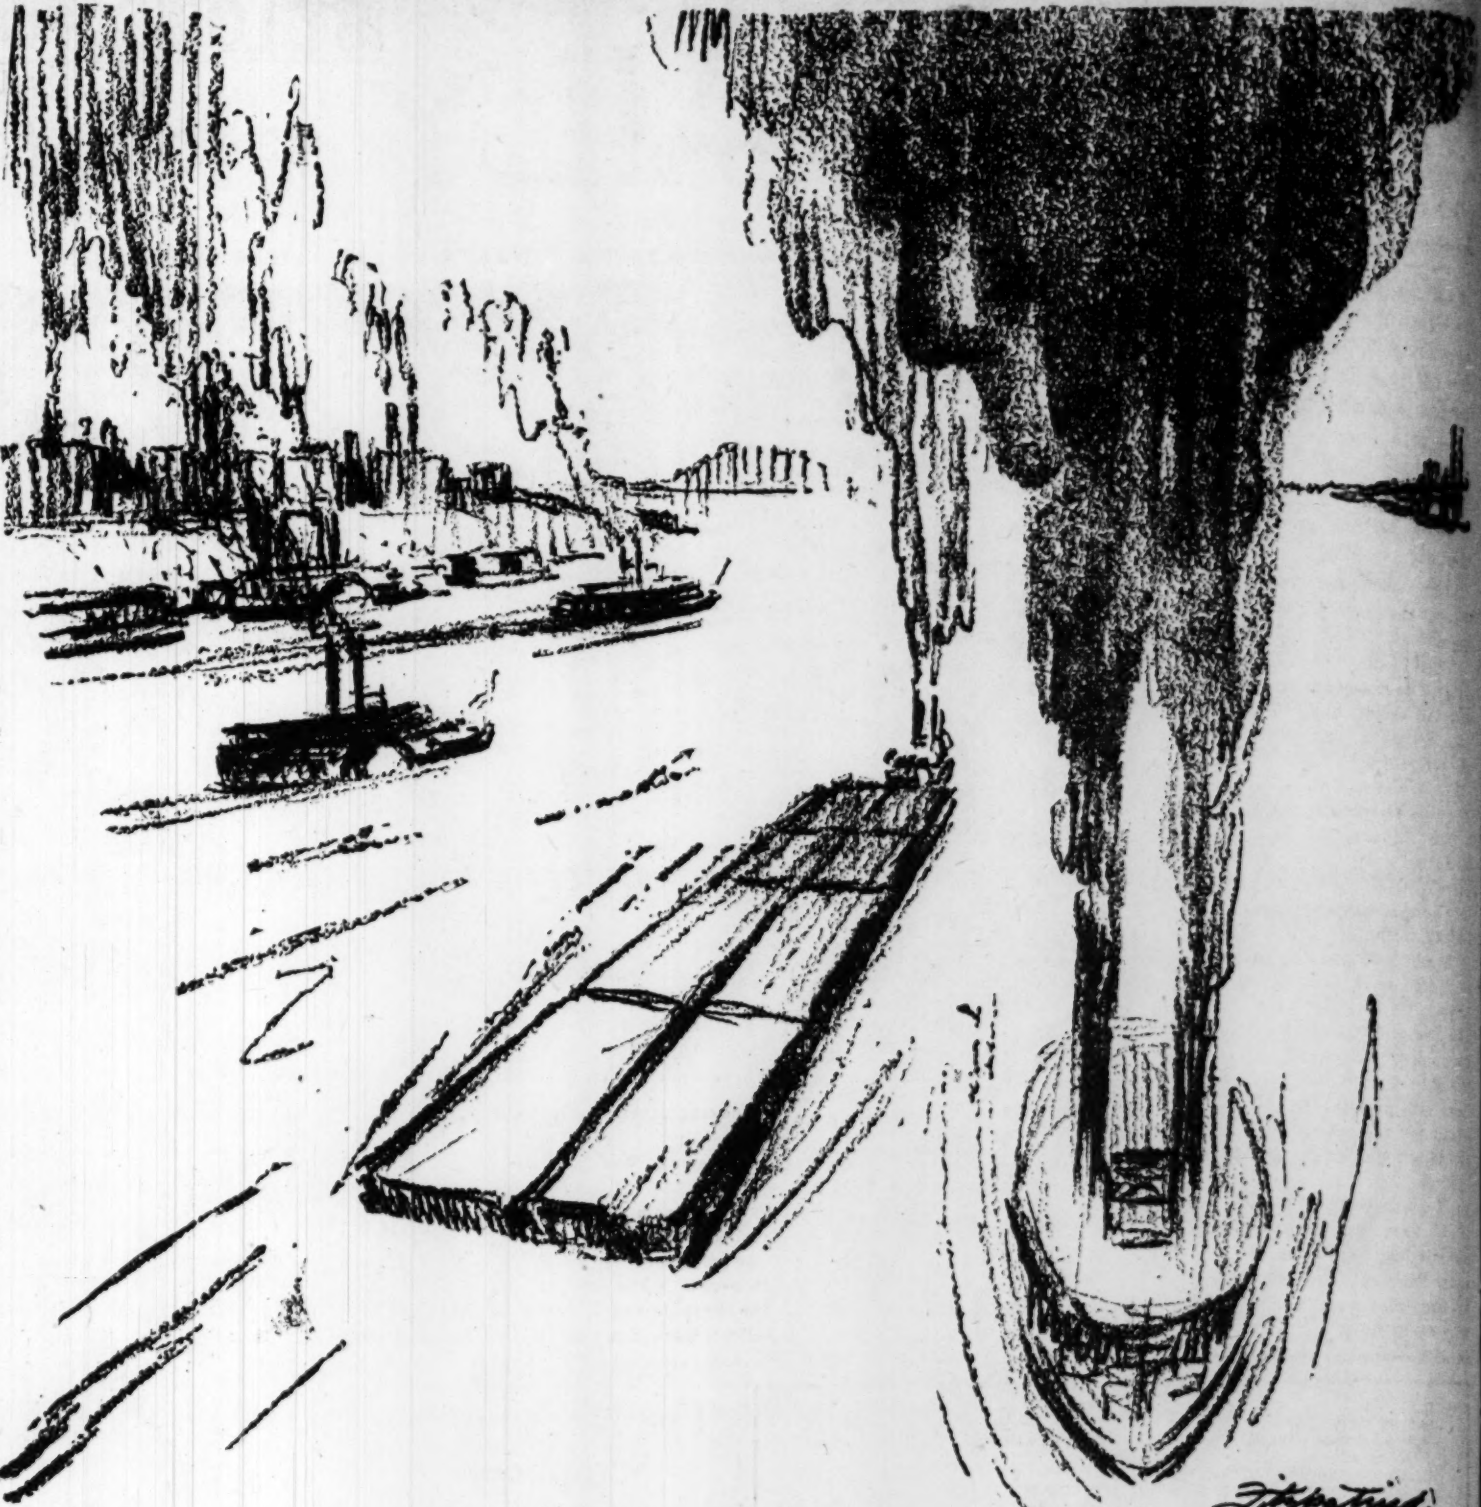

The action of the church numbers her with those to whom veneration is due and in whose name miracles have been reputed to be performed, but she has always been a great figure in history, a martyr to patriotism, if not to religion. Doubtless the devout who will become the special patron saint of women who seek the public good and sacrifice themselves to the service of country.

In his tour of the East to inform the people of that section that he is not so radical as they think him, Hiram Johnson may point to the primary results in his own State. They show that he has the enthusiastic support of California's most notorious reactionaries.

NO CONGESTION HERE.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
 by Clark McDann.

IN WHICH WE MAKE OUR OWN PEACE.

FOLLOWING the example of Congress, Just a Minute has made its own peace with the Central Powers. We are no longer at war with Germany and her allies. They will be mentioned in Just a Minute hereafter as friends, without prejudice because of what has happened. The matter was concluded on yesterday at a meeting of all our topnotch held under the cartoon, Socrates presided, and the resolution, which was offered by Mr. Antwine, was as follows:

WHEREAS, Congress has set us the example of a separate peace with the Central Powers, irrespective of our League of Nations and regardless of our allies in the late war; and
 WHEREAS, Congress has nothing on us so far as we know either as a deliberative body or an aspirant to peace; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That there is no longer anything between Just a Minute and the Central Powers, no matter what may be done by the rest of the paper.

Mr. Antwine moved adoption of the resolution, and the motion was seconded by Polemarchus. The discussion was as follows:
 Thrasymachus: I don't think the action contemplated by the resolution exactly parallels the action of Congress, which I take it is Mr. Antwine's object. Exactly to parallel the action of Congress we would make his own peace with the Central Powers, which I undertake to do in my own case with the following:

WHEREAS, No two people seem to agree upon what the terms of peace with the Central Powers should be; and
 WHEREAS, I, Thrasymachus, am very anxious to make peace on my own hook, without giving a damn whether anyone else gets himself out of it or not; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That I, Thrasymachus, am no longer at war with the Central Powers and hope never again to be at war with them.

Socrates: The point is well made. While there is no doubt some slight obligation upon the part of Thrasymachus to the rest of us who stood with him through the war, that is purely an ethical matter in which we have for our guidance the unethical conduct of Congress. However, since we are restricted, and unjustly, as I think, to a very limited space under the cartoon we haven't room for so many resolutions and will therefore consider the prior action.

Mr. Antwine: I appreciate that ruling, Mr. Chairman, notwithstanding I think Thrasymachus right. I had precisely the same idea at the outset, and undertook to have each member of my family make a separate peace with the Central Powers. Subsequently I concluded that inasmuch as Congress acted as a group it would perhaps be best for us to do so. I originally thought of suggesting that each of us pick out a German and make an individual peace with him, but I abandoned that idea when I recalled that even I would probably have difficulty making peace with a separate Turk. I was afraid it might result in a holy war between myself and some Turk.

Sign Hunter No. 9843928984556: I wish to support Mr. Antwine's resolution. We need to have those countries opened to sign hunting and restore the world's sense of humor.

Glaucus: I suppose, Mr. Chairman, that the editor will kill the resolution.

Socrates: No doubt, but we have nothing to do with that. We shall be able to say to the country that we have made peace, and so far as we are concerned the war is over.

national society in restraint of attempts to disturb the peace of the world, but we seem to have 10 Republicans to one idealist, and we shall have to wait. All those in favor of the resolution will kindly say Aye. (Chorus of Ayes.)

Socrates: The Ayes have it. Peace on earth and good will to men.

Sir: I have heretofore foreborne from hurling myself into this strawberry shortcake welter, but it seems that the time has come for all good men to take a stand one way or the other, and I hereby align myself with the sponge-cake faction, as opposed to the biscuit-dough school.

Like all other men who acquire distinction by their vociferous adherence to an idea previously originated by somebody else, I am unable to see where the biscuit-dough way of thinking has a leg to stand on. What kinship is there between soda biscuit, or even the kind made with buttermilk, with the sweet, succulent strawberry? What have they in common? Nothing, I do avow.

On the other hand, what is more natural than to find the strawberry cake consorting with that culinary aristocrat, sponge cake. They are congenial. They travel on the same plane. Each is eligible for the other's company. It is a perfect match. No such thing can be said by the biscuit-dough school. Their champion is a plain, a veritable drudge in the realm of sustenance. Let him keep to his roast pork and apple sauce. He may even aspire to be seen abroad with bacon, but let him not press, nor permit to be pressed, his company upon that queen of berries, the strawberry.

Up, fellow spongers, and at 'em! Strike while the biscuits are hot! P. Y. A.

Sir: The only possible justification you could have for going fishing in a crisis like this is that not enough people are catching fish and we need more fishermen. That is thinking pretty deep down, but I know you wouldn't go unless you had been down there and made quite sure of yourself.

The decline in fur prices is not the only sign of hope. Here is another in a barber shop on St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis:

Hurrah for one-third!
 Even the coal shortage induces odd expression, as witness this paragraph from coal orders issued at Rolla, Missouri:

Pool halls and bowling alleys close at 6 p. m., with the exception of drug stores and restaurants.

Sir: You won't realize what the paper shortage has come to until you see the sign of a negro barber over on Franklin avenue. It says:

Colored News-papers
 Is that the black sheet? 7632601.

Sir: From a want ad of Sunday:
 CAT—Lost; black, with white spots on front; breast.

What color was its back tail? 83627907864.

TODAY.
 GOD opened wide the gate of Heaven
 And let today slip thru.
 It's such a breezy, blowing day,
 All sparkling gold, and blue.

But when the hours have slipped away
 And gone beyond our ken,
 God opens wide His rosy gates
 And takes it back again.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

WILSON AT VERSAILLES.

From the Scottish Review.
 WE watch with interest, if not very hopefully, Mr. Wilson's efforts to recover his momentum. We imagine that his fall was too great to admit of his ever again ascending to the dizzy heights to which he climbed, and from which he fell, almost as soon as the pinnacles were reached. Mr. Wilson's collapse is a sad story—fraught with vices to humanity and humiliating beyond compare to himself. High-browed, top-hatted, and ushered by the thunder and lightning of popular applause, he set foot on the soil of France, only to collapse, in a few short weeks, like a punctured bladder, before the shaft of a French materialist of a singularly gross school. With what ease can one reconstruct the successive scenes in that tragedy and the comic lining! Mr. Wilson, all Principles, and positively bristling with "Points," M. Clemenceau, his adversary, of the earth earthy, and inclined to be sceptical of the existence of his darling element, a little shabby vote-catcher from Wales, now in, now out, at the wings, and who plays the part of the fox ex machina as often as whim or interest inspires him to do so. But why pursue so melancholy a theme? Is it not now, as it was ever, the case that "Unadulterated Principle is no match for Millant Materialism, unless to the rectitude and humanity of the Dove, there be joined the guile of the Serpent, and the strength of the Ox?"

BRITISH MONROE DOCTRINE FOR IRELAND.

From the Century Magazine.
 WE have today in existence an "Irish Republic" asking recognition. England is proposing two Parliaments for Ireland, one for Ulster and one for the rest of Ireland, with a single Council for all Ireland that will have such powers and duties as the two Parliaments may see fit to grant it as the situation develops. Carson is reported as advising Ulster to face about and yield to this plan. But the one thing England insists upon is that complete separation from the British Empire is out of the question. Sinn Fein demands complete independence. One of the main arguments of England is that Ireland is a strategically located that the security of England demands union. Eamonn de Valera answers this argument by proposing a Monroe Doctrine for the British Isles in which he asserts the Sinn Fein Republic would co-operate. He asserts that Ireland can grant independence to Ireland and at the same time guarantee her security by such procedure. He asks why Great Britain cannot do with Ireland as the United States did with Cuba.

THE UNREST IN INDIA.

L. E. Campbell in the Christian Herald.
 THE seriousness of the recent political unrest in India has been greater than it is generally supposed. Many believe that if the Government had not taken the matter up with a firm hand, the Amritsar affair last April, there might have broken out another mutiny somewhat like that of 1857-8. The causes for this unrest are various: religious, political, economic, and social. The great excitement among the 10,000,000 of Mohammedans last Great Britain should consent to the dismemberment of the Turkish Empire, are all important factors. Most of all, this seditious spirit is among the Brahmins. Education is spreading in India, and the great excitement among the Brahmins is that their influence is on the wane, and they are prepared to put forth one last desperate effort to retain their power. The Sudras, the great middle class, are loyal and never more contented with British rule than now. The rule of Great Britain in India has been of untold blessing. The census in that country gave 147 languages to 10,000,000 of people. From Britain it has received a stable government for its mixed population. It has an excellent postal system, courts of justice have been founded where Brahmins, of Pariah has his rights equally defended. Industries have sprung up, while the taxes are lighter than in any other civilized country.

LEVY

What's a Nation or Two When There's a Kiss to be Had for Indemnity?

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

It is the height of military genius to be able, upon the spur of the moment, to change the entire plan of attack in order to take advantage of an unexpected opportunity. Both Alexander the Great and Napoleon were adepts at this. It was Alexander who, at the battle of Arbela—but, no! Let us stick to Levy and the battle of the Star Assembly Rooms.

It was a busy night for this popular meeting place. Lipsky, the manager, was standing in the doorway when Levy arrived.

"Hello, Levy!" exclaimed Lipsky. "Going to the Cohen wedding?"

"The Cohen wedding?" said Levy in surprise. "Ain't the Elberg-Seligman wedding here to-night?"

"Sure," said the manager. "We got three weddings, two banquets and a lodge meeting tonight. But the Cohen wedding is the swell affair. Old man Seligman just took the little room on the third floor."

For one instant Levy stood plunged in thought. Then he seized the manager by the arm.

"Say, Lipsky," he said, "maybe you'll be able to do me a big favor tonight, and if you do there'll be $50 in it for you."

"For that price it ought to be a murder," said Lipsky, grinning.

"Please just wait down here a little while and I'll come back and tell you all about it," said Levy. He hurried upstairs. Seligman's guests had begun to assemble in one room while Seligman and his daughter were with a few intimate friends in an anteroom. Dora caught sight of Levy's face at the door—hers was pale as his—and seeing her father engaged in conversation, she joined him in the corridor.

"Dora," he whispered, "I arranged everything, but I'm worried. If I lost you now I'd want to die. I hate even to take a chance. Listen! This place is just full of rabbits tonight. Let's go downstairs and get married by one, anyway. Then we can come back and I'm sure I can get away with everything."

Dora came close to him. She was trembling. She raised her face to his.

"I'll do anything you say," she whispered. The perspiration stood upon Levy's brow.

"Gosh, Dora," he exclaimed, "I'd give three fingers off my hand if I could kiss you now. But—I made a promise—come—quick."

If ever a man really earned $50 in a short space of time it was Lipsky, the manager of the Star Assembly Rooms. Within five minutes he had brought a bewildered rabbi to an unoccupied lodge room.

"I'll be one witness," he said. "How'll a waiter do for the other?" Levy nodded.

"But der marriage litteness," cried the rabbi, evidently hoping that Levy did not possess one. Levy handed the document to him.

"It was made out three hours ago," he said. "Now come, Rabbi. Remember I'm an orphan and I've got to catch a train."

"And he's a friend of mine, Rab," said Lipsky. "Everything's all right and I'm responsible." The ceremony was brief but binding.

"Come on, Dora," cried Levy, when the last word was spoken and the certificate had been signed. "You must go upstairs now. The real business is going to begin." But Dora did not move. She stood gazing reproachfully at her husband. And then Levy saw light and gave a great cry. Lipsky drew the rabbi out of the room.

"You'd better go upstairs and finish that Cohen job," he said.

The waiter who had been the second witness rubbed his eyes with his napkin and tiptoed out of the room. Levy kissed Dora as a man kisses a woman but once in his lifetime.

Dora found her father looking at his watch and frowning.

"I don't know what's keeping Max," he exclaimed, peevishly.

"Let's go out in the other room," said Dora, whose face was now flushed with radiant happiness. "The guests will be impatient."

There were perhaps 20 people in the room, and, as Seligman entered, the first person he beheld was Levy, walking rapidly toward him.

"Hello, Mr. Seligman," cried the young man. "Can I have two minutes with you?"

"How did you get here?" asked Seligman, dumfounded.

"I took the Clinton street car," said Levy. And then Seligman suddenly became aware of the fact that his daughter had taken the young man's hand. It was Dora who led her father to a corner of the room.

"Look here, Mr. Seligman," said Levy—and Dora thought he looked so manly that she wanted to kiss him then and there—"you never gave Dora a chance. If she'd married that Elberg she would have been miserable. And you would have felt bad, too. So we decided to save you. We love each other. If you was young like us you'd know what it means. I got a couple of thousand dollars saved up and I got a good job. I don't need a cent from you and I ain't going to take it, either. But I'm going to marry Dora. That Elberg fellow ain't going to show up. I fixed it—me—Sam Levy. If I have to go to jail for it, I'll go to jail. But I just wanted to show you that I'm in earnest. Now, what's your proposition? Do you want to disappoint all these people or do you want to have a wedding? If I go out now, Dora will come with me. Do you want everybody to give you the ha-ha, or do you want to tell these people that there was just a mistake in the wedding announcement, and the name was Levy instead of Elberg? And—I'll tell you something more, Mr. Seligman—just to show you I mean what I say—I ain't going to have more than two seconds to think it over."

Seligman leaned against the wall, dazed. His daughter took his hand between her hands.

"Please say 'yes,' papa," she said. "Please make me happy."

Levy gazed at her father's face. He was quick to detect the indecision written there. He turned to the assembled guests, who, aware that something unusual was transpiring, had become restless.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began. But Seligman, suddenly roused, seized him by the shoulders.

"What are you going to say?" he demanded. Then Levy smiled for the first time.

"I was just going to ask where the rabbi is," he said. And now Dora stepped forward, ignoring them both, and filled with a sudden, high resolve, turned to the guests. Her eyes were shining, her countenance fairly glowed.

"I've broken my engagement with Mr. Elberg," she said. "I found that I—I had made a mistake. It's all very sudden, but—but I love my—I'm going to marry Mr. Levy."

"My God!" cried Levy. "Ain't that a wife to be proud of?"

And, before them all, he clasped her in his arms and kissed her passionately.

To describe the scene that ensued and make the description at all coherent would be as tedious as it would be unsatisfactory. The women, sensing romance, flocked about the girl, and all talked at the same time. The men, more awkward, congratulated Levy—some even congratulated the bewildered Mr. Seligman—and then began to chatter of other things. Levy, however, sought out the rabbi.

"Say," he whispered fiercely into that dignitary's ear, as, at the same time, he pressed a roll of bills into his hand, "get this business finished quick, won't you? I got to beat it out of here."

There fell a hush upon the gathering. Levy and Dora took their places under the canopy and the reading of the marriage ritual was begun. Seligman, nervous, disconcerted, excited, worried—oh, thoroughly miserable—kept moaning a sort of wailing undersong to the rabbi's recital.

The moment the ceremony was completed Levy threw his arms around his father-in-law's neck and kissed him upon the cheek.

"Now you just be a good scout," said he, "and don't worry. You'll never be sorry. I'm going to be a regular son to you."

As he turned away Seligman, his mind all a-whirl, called after him, "You dropped something."

Levy picked up a sheet of paper, that had fallen from his pocket, glanced at it and smiled.

"That's the wedding certificate we got down stairs," said he. "I ain't taking any chances."

Harping on "Those Good Old Days"

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

A LETTER comes to me from a man in which is contained very often the words, "those good old days." He deplores many of the steps taken in the interest of human welfare, such as lunches in schools, milk regulation, workmen's compensation, rent regulation—in fact he is against everything, except "those good old days."

He dwells especially on the time when poor families had great struggles, saying: "They were very poor people, working for small wages, but they gave their children food sufficient to keep them good and strong."

He seemed to think that parents actually starve their children today in order to put money in the bank, and that everybody was happy "in those good old days," and that now the reverse is true.

Somewhat I get very tired hearing about "those good old days." They might have been good for those days, but how about them now?

I wonder what this man would think if we were suddenly deprived of gas and had to carry coal for every bit of cooking. Or if he could only get a street car once every hour or so.

I wonder how he would feel if he had to walk many blocks to buy his milk in the morning, instead of having it delivered at his door.

Or what would be his attitude if he were to write letters for every important matter and wait for a reply, instead of using a telephone?

If he had his choice, and it were possible, would he want to go back to "those good old days?" Not at all. He would be the first one to rebel.

These are the kind of people whose criticism and so-called conservatism retard the wheels of progress. They would stay the hand of Father Time, if they could.

I know a woman in the country who is not unlike this person who writes to me. She is a mother of three children—children who hardly see anything or anybody but their mother. She is a widow and has sufficient funds to rear her children.

But she has, according to her own words, "old-fashioned notions about bringing up children"—and, in fact, everything else.

Occasionally I pay a visit to this family. To me they are most pitiful indeed. Their growth, at least mentally, is being stilted. They are bright children. They would learn very readily.

But this mother, still living in "those good old days," insists that they shall have only a limited knowledge, "such as was good enough for grandfather." So they are taught "readin' and writin'" and "rithmetic"—only the very necessary things that came to them at school.

A newspaper rarely finds its way into this household. I venture to say these children never heard of an airplane. Their mother does not believe in these "new-fangled contraptions."

These little ones, never having the association of others, except during the school period, are deprived of the important factor of life, which is learning relations of one human to another, one comrade as to another, one friend as to another.

Every day they are told about the greatness of their dead father instead of being taught something about live matters.

In their damp and shade-drawn room, which is opened only on state occasions, they peep at times to see the framed funeral wreaths and the glass inclosed doves and birds.

They are kept "in those good old days," as strong as the mother can keep them, and I am wondering what will happen when these children grow a little older; when they can use their hands, their hearts and their heads without their parents' guidance. What will they do?

It is certainly bad enough to preach the doctrines of "those good old days," but to live them is infinitely worse. To say the least, it is unfair.

The trend of the times goes on forever. No one person or groups of persons can stop it. New conditions, new ideas and new ideals continually confront us. We can't shake them off by criticism. We must meet them.

Make them better if they are wrong, but certainly it is unwise to sit quietly by and say you would have it use a mixture of ammonia and anything to do with the new order of things because of your great admiration for "those good old days."

Yesterday is gone—today is here.

GET YOUR BEARINGS.

YOU have as much chance at success by rushing it as you would have of trying to climb Niagara in the same fashion.

A running start is valuable in a footrace, but in few other contests.

Before you tackle any problem, it is better to stop and find out what the problem is.

And it is generally agreed that success is the biggest and most difficult problem in this life. There are more entries and fewer winners. That is certain.

Our army in France was taught to make an estimate of every situation in which it found itself.

Even when this occasional delay it was insisted upon.

To know where the enemy is, how strong he is, and whether or not he means to fight is essential to the winning of a battle.

Every man who aims at success has enemies to overcome. They may not be human enemies, although they often are.

But whether they are rivals bound in the same direction, inanimate objects, habits, conditions of life, or enemies within the comrade himself, he must make an estimate of them before he has much chance of overcoming them.

Often a little thought will show you that what you supposed to be obstacles are not obstacles at all, and that what you regarded as aids are really stumbling blocks.

Look the ground over, wherever you are. Size up the situation. Determine your own strength, and if you find it is not great enough to grapple with a problem, take means to make it greater.

Gen. Grant would not have accepted the command of the Union armies in the first year of the Civil War even if it had been offered to him.

When the offer did come he had grown big enough to accept it. Rushing a thing seldom achieves it unless the rushing is preceded by a long, hard preparation. That is true even of a football game, where the first rush is what counts.

It is well enough to know where you are going, but unless you also know how to get there, you will never do anything but make a bad start.

IF you use flour for thickening custards mix the sugar and flour well together before adding the liquid and you will get a smooth paste instead of a lumpy mass as is frequently the case when stirring it into the flour alone. Have the paste thin enough to run easily to avoid lumping when it is poured into the boiling milk.

Palms will grow nicely indoors if the leaves are sponged once a week with lukewarm water to which a little lime has been added. Then stand the plant for two hours in lukewarm water deep enough to completely cover the pot.

Fit a newspaper into the drip pan of your gas stove. It can be changed each day when cleaning the kitchen and is much less trouble than washing the pan each time.

If aluminum ware is cleansed with steel wool and soap it will always look bright, but if you must polish it use a mixture of ammonia and borax and apply it with a soft cloth. Rinse in several waters.

Instead of candy, why not try stuffed prunes? Wash prunes in warm water, dry, remove pit and place half an English walnut meat in its place. These are not only delicious, but healthful besides.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Something Wrong With Jumper's Eyes

Of all folks fortunate is he
Whose eyes are trained to really see.

"I'VE seen 'Timmy' the Flying Squirrel lately," spoke up Jumper the Hare, in reply to the question by Old Mother Nature.

"When I was just at dusk last evening, I wish I could fly the way he can."

Old Mother Nature shook her head disapprovingly. "Jumper," she said, "what is wrong with your eyes? When did you ever see Timmy fly?"

"Last night," insisted Jumper stubbornly.

"Oh, no, you didn't," retorted Old Mother Nature. "You never have seen him fly and you never will, and for the very good reason that he can't fly any more than you can. You saw him jump. That was all. Just remember that the only animals in all this great land that can fly are the birds. Timmy the Flying Squirrel simply jumps from one tree to another. If you had used your eyes you would have noticed that when he is in the air he never moves his legs and arms, and is always coming down save for a little upward shoot at the end of his jump so as to land flat against the trunk of a tree. What he does is to jump from high up in one tree and slide down on the air to the lower part of another tree. He hasn't any wings."

"When he is flying, I mean jumping, he looks as if he had wings," persisted Jumper.

"That is simply because I have given him a fold of skin between the front and hind leg on each side," explained Old Mother Nature. "When he jumps he stretches those two folds of skin until they look almost like wings. They support him in the air, and this is the reason he can jump so far. His tail helps him keep his balance and to steer himself around anything in the way."

"But why don't we ever see him?" inquired Striped Chipmunk.

"Because when the rest of you Squirrels are out and about he is fast asleep, and when he is out and about you are fast asleep. Timmy likes the dark and doesn't like the light of day," replied Old Mother Nature.

"How big is he?" asked Happy Jack and looked as if he felt a wee bit ashamed that he knew so little of one of his own cousins.

"Very near the size of Striped Chipmunk," replied Old Mother Nature. "Way out in the Far West he grows just a little bigger. His coat is wonderfully soft, yellowish-brown above and white beneath. He has very large, dark, soft eyes especially suited for seeing at night. Just at dusk he becomes very lively and dearly loves to romp and play. By nature he is gentle and lovable."

"Does he eat nuts?" asked Peter Rabbit.

"He certainly does," said Old Mother Nature. "Also he eats grubs and insects. He dearly loves a fat grub. He likes meat when he can get it."

"Where does he make his home?" inquired Peter.

"Usually in a hole in a tree. He likes the old home of a Woodpecker. He makes a comfortable nest of bark, lining, grass, moss or any other soft material he can find. Once in a $5000 to $15,000 a year.

while he builds a nest high up in the branches of a tree. He likes to get into old buildings. He has the same enemies the rest of you have, but dreads Hooty the Owl most because Hooty hunts at just the time Timmy is abroad."

"Does he sleep all winter?" piped up Striped Chipmunk.

"In very cold weather he sleeps, but if he happens to be living where the weather does not get very cold he is active all the year round," replied Old Mother Nature. "Now I know this is enough about the Squirrel family."

"But you've forgotten Johnny Chuck!" cried Peter.

Old Mother Nature laughed. "So I have," said she. "Johnny and his relatives, the Marmots, mustn't be overlooked. Peter, you tell Johnny Chuck to come over here tomorrow morning."

HOME ECONOMICS

By Mrs. Elizabeth Kent.

Disposal of Waste.

A COMMON saying of our grandmothers' day was, "show me her garbage can and I'll tell you what kind of a housekeeper she is."

This is indeed one of the tests of good housekeeping. No one should be called a good housekeeper who does not see to it that there is as little waste as possible, and that unavoidable waste is disposed of as quickly and thoroughly as possible.

Only that which cannot be used in any way should be thrown out, but there is no advantage in keeping worthless scraps.

There are two kinds of unavoidable waste in the kitchen—uncooked refuse, such as potato parings, eggshells, and the like, and waste food which comes from the table.

People who live in the country do not find it hard to dispose of waste. Part of it can be used for animals, and the rest can be burned or buried without much trouble.

The city dweller has a more difficult problem unless his municipal laws are very up-to-date and well-enforced. If a coal range is used some refuse can be burned, but only a little at a time, for otherwise it is both malodorous and wasteful of coal. The city dweller must have one or more garbage cans, and treat them with intelligence. Liquid waste ought not to be poured into a can. It only the solid parts put in the can. The liquid must be poured down the sink. Washing soda should be added to greasy liquids, to emulsify the fat, which will otherwise clog the drain.

A covered enamel pail is the best receptacle for garbage, as it has a smooth surface, easy to clean. Whenever the pail is emptied, it should be washed, rinsed, and wet-dried in the sun, if possible. Chloride of lime is an excellent deodorizer and disinfectant, and keeps the flies at a respectable distance. Different sorts of waste should go into separate vessels. Tin and glass in one, ashes in another, food waste in a third, and garbage in a fourth.

Garbage is always unpleasant, but there are degrees of unpleasantness and a neglected garbage pail is an evanescent and a nuisance to the health of the family and the community.
